SCHUYLKILL HAVEN (Schuylkill Co.) — A team of five just-graduates from Blue Mountain High School in Schuylkill County recently were named the national Envirothon champions at the national event held at the Johnstown campus of the University of Pittsburgh.

The team was recognized at the Schuylkill County agriculture center in Schuylkill Haven on Monday, during the annual awards luncheon of the county Conservation District.

Other awards made Monday included the county conservation award winners.

The win is perhaps more significant since this year's event marked the 10th year that the national Envirothon has been held, starting with the first national event held in Pennsylvania.

The sixth national championship by a Pennsylvania Envirothon team, it is the fourth national championship won by [illegible] from Blue Mountain High School.

The members of the team were Aaron Clauser of Schuylkill Haven, Phil McDonald of Orwigsburg, Tami Smerlick of Adamsdale, Caroline Watral of Schuylkill Haven, and Jeremy Johnson of Schuylkill Haven. All but Johnson, who is employed full time as a carpenter, were able to attend Monday's awards ceremony.

Nearly 200 students on 37 teams, representing 34 states and three Canadian provinces competed for the honors during the five-day Envirothon.

The winners each receive a $2,500 scholarship from corporate sponsor Cannon Corp. The second place team receives $1,500 scholarships, while the third place team receives $1,000 scholarships.

All of the Pennsylvania team, except Johnson, are planning to begin pursuing environmental or science-related college degrees this year.

According to Glenn Luckenbill, team coach and 28-year science teacher with the Blue Mountain school system, not to take anything away from the winning teams of the past, but the level of competition has increased over the decade of competitions started with Pen-

Lancaster County tobacco farmers have begun harvesting their $20 million cash crop a little behind schedule. Eugene Rohrer, Strasburg, said they started last Thursday and had about 3,000 lath done by the time the photographer caught up with the operation Tuesday afternoon. This was only about half the number Rohrer usually has done by the middle of August. But cool weather early and then dry weather made the crop mature later this year. But quality is expected to be good. Last year the extra wet weather made the stalks heavy and leaves of lower quality. This season the stalks are lighter because of the dry weather, but the late rains put quality into the leaves. Rohrer has 23 acres of Type 41 tobacco and reports that demand for this type of tobacco is expected to be rather good this year. Increased world market demand is expected to influence local demand.

John Yocum, head of Penn State's research farm at Landisville, agreed the price this year may make the crop value exceed the average. But he said the remaining effects of blue mold and curing in the barns will determine the final outcome. Yocum said after the heavy rains several weeks ago, farmers should have gone in and sprayed right away. But many farmers didn't spray for the disease, and now they are in a situation where they need to decide if they are losing more from blue mold or from cutting early.

One characteristic of the disease works in the farmers' favor. After the tobacco is topped, the disease seems to not spread as fast. Yocum said scientists are not sure why the plant seems to have more natural defenses at this time. The dry weather certainly did help the blue mold disease problem and made the leaves thicker and of better quality. Good growing and curing weather the next several weeks will help to determine the final outcome of this year's tobacco crop. ## Pennsylvania State Hay Show Winners Named ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — The 1997 Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council-sponsored Hay Show at Ag Progress Days was held last week.

Returning judge was Dr. Lester Vough, crop specialist for University of Maryland. Dr. Marvin Hall, Penn State researcher and extension specialist, coordinates the show.

There is no entry fee and all entries are automatically entered into the next Pennsylvania Farm Show hay show.

Hay entries are first judged based on visual appearances, and then on tested content.

The show is organized by recognizing three different treatments of hay.

Section I includes hay that is field cured, or partially field cured, but definetly mow finished (no heat or preservatives).

Section II is for partially field cured hay with preservatives. Section III is for partially field cured and heat dried (but no preservatives).

Each section is then divided into 10 classes of hay — two classes each, reflecting first cuttings or a later cutting (except for mixed hay, which is rated according to the percentage of legumes and grass), of five different hay types: alfalfa, alfalfa-grass, clover, grass, and mixed hay.

The grand champion of the Section I entrics was an entery by Tra-

Midwest Expert Looks At Dairy Situation

MADISON, Wis. — Milk production for the month of July for 20 reporting states was released on August 14. Milk production was up 4.8% from a year ago, the strongest monthly increase this year. This was somewhat suprising because there were reports of hot weather in parts of California and elsewhere that reduced milk per cow. But July numbers don't verify this. In fact, milk per cow was up 5.7% from a year ago.

Milk cow numbers were down just .9% which shows that the nation's milk cow herd is not declining like it was a year ago when grain prices were much higher. Cumulative milk production for January through July for the U.S. is estimated to be 1.6% higher than for the same period last year. Milk production has not declined seasonally. July milk production was .5% more than June and down just 3.3% from the peak in May.

Over 100 Bu/A of wheat and counting.

Thanks to Hoffman, it's been a record harvest in central Pennsylvania.

Hoffman 95 Brand wheat is making quite a name for itself in central Pennsylvania.

Planting this adaptable, hardy variety, many farmers here harvested record wheat yields this summer—with documented production levels of over 100 bushels per acre and top test weights of more than 60 lbs. per bushel.

As central Pennsylvania farmers have discovered, its excellent standability makes Hoffman 95 Brand wheat easy to combine. It also provides strong disease resistance for maximum yield and grain quality.

Already a top-seller for Hoffman Seeds, Hoffman 95 Brand wheat is sure to tip the scales next season, too. Ask your Hoffman Seeds' dealer about the yield potential of Hoffman wheat varieties for your farm. Or call us at 800/776-7929 or visit our web site at www.hoffmanseeds.com.

After all, records were made to be broken.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

AUGUST 25-31, 1997

WOMEN'S EQUALITY DAY, AUG. 26.

BYE, GEORGE!

On August 29, 1782, the British vessel Royal George unexpectedly sank at her mooring in Portsmouth Harbor, England. The ship was being careened for repairs, a common system of heeling a ship wholly or partly on its side in order to clean, paint, or repair the portions of the hull below the waterline, near the keel. In fact, the word careen comes from the Latin carina, for keel, although it is often confused and used colloquially for career, as in "the car careened off down the street." In any case, we'd guess the careening of the Royal George, and subsequent sorry sinking, was not a good career move for anyone involved.

The fleet careen'd, the wind propitious filled the swelling sails.

– William Shenstone

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Float cabbage or broccoli worms out by soaking heads in a gallon of water with a teaspoon of salt.

BLUEBERRY PIE

dough for a 2-crust pie
1 quart blueberries, rinsed and drained
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons tapioca
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon lemon juice
dash salt
1 tablespoon butter

Roll out pastry and fit bottom crust into pie plate. Mix next seven ingredients, fill crust, dot with butter, and cover with top crust. Press edges of crust together and cut slits in top. Bake 10 minutes at 450° F, then 45 minutes at 350° F.

Makes 8 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If woolly fleeces deck the heavenly way, no rain will mar a summer's day.

The last Friday of the month foretells the weather for the next month.

When the cattle lie down as soon as they are released to pasture in the morning, look for rain.

Tull Hill Farms doesn't own that building, but a sharp management decision made it one of their best assets.

Jimmy and Michael Hill, Tull Hill Farms, Kinston, North Carolina

The Hill family was ready to pay cash for a new 80,000 square foot storage facility for Tull Hill Farms. They changed their mind when Telmark explained how much they could save by leasing the facility instead. Their sharp management decision saved profits by adding to the bottom line with a Telmark operating lease. They also have a buyout option at the end of the lease term.

The Hill family found the tax breaks, end-of-term buyout option, and flexible payment plan so attractive, they leased the complete facility. Most lenders aren't ready to offer this kind of alternative financing.

Telmark understands building and equipment financing needs for all types of commercial and agricultural operations. For a financing source that's been listening to farmers for over 30 years, call your Telmark representative or 800-451-3322.

OPINION

No New Regulations Until True Facts Known

The Environmental Protection Agency publicly acknowledges that agriculture is not a major emitter of fine particulate air pollution, but faulty documentation that overestimates agriculture's contribution could target farmers for unnecessary regulation. That's the story told to the Senate Agriculture Committee in Washington, DC, last week.

And we agree. Amnerica's farmers have undertaken conservation activities that enhance air quality. Such practices as conservation tillage and planting cover crops, trees, and vegetation reduce wind erosion of the soil, which in turn provides cleaner air.

We believe farmers are cleaning the air and should get credit for being the conservationists they are.

New rules to tighten air quality standards have many farmers concerned because EPA lacks actual measurements of what agriculture emits in the form of fine particulates. One study estimates as much as 34.3 percent of primary fine particulate matter can be attributed to agriculture and forestry. Another suggest an amount as low as five percent.

There is very limited research by independent studies, so little information is known about the standard's cost to agriculture and consumers. And more importantly, the positive side of modern agricultural activity and how it contributes to overall air quality gets little if any consideration.

Until all this information is known and considered, farmers should not need to face any more new regulations.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Ensile Drought Stressed Corn

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent, states drought stressed corn of proper moisture content can have good feed value It may actually have slightly less fiber and the fiber may be more digestible than that of "normal" silage Drought stressed fields can supply some much needed forage in years when forage supplies are tight So, if you need more forage and your neighboring grain producers have some fields that will not shell out well, you may help them out by chopping their fields When corn growth is stunted, nitrates can accumulate in the bottom portion of the plant Concentrations in the bottom 12 inches may be 10 times that of the rest of the plant To reduce the risk of nitrate toxicity, chop the crop at least 12 inches high and let it ferment three weeks before feeding

To Harvest Corn Silage

To harvest the best quality silage we need to focus on moisture content, length of cut, cutting height, nutrient changes and fermentation, according to Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent The moisture content of the corn plant may change rapidly Do not let it catch you off guard It may be hard to gauge the moisture content of the crop by the appearance of the plant or by the movement of the milk line in the kernels

The only accurate way is chop a few representative stalks and test them for moisture content. A good guide to aim for is about 65 per cent moisture - slightly less for upright silos and slightly more for bunkers. The drier the silage the harder it is to pack, the greater the risk of poor fermentation and the lower the digestibility will be In hot, dry weather, the number of lactobacillus bacteria (the ones needed for good fermentation) can decrease So, to help endure good fermentation, it may be beneficial to use good lactobacillus type preservative.

To Plant Alfalfa

Alfalfa seeding time is near. Research has found that the optimum number of plants to produce the highest yield over the life of the stand was 19 plants per square foot in the seeding year, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent. In Pennsylvania, to achieve this plant population it is recommended to plant 18 to 20 pounds per acre when fungicide and insect treatment is not used or 15 to 17 pounds with a fungicide and insect treatment. Variety selection is also a key factor in maximizing alfalfa yields Selection of a high yielding variety which is disease resistant or tolerant is essential. The Pennsylvania Alfalfa Variety Trials for last growing season are available at your county cooperative extension office. This report ranks the alfalfa varieties which were on test for fall dormancy, bacteria wilt, fusarium wilt, phytophthora root rot, aphid resistance and verticillium wilt. In addition, it gives yields over a one to four year period.

Editor,

In this age of "merger mania" in agricultural organizations, one begins to wonder, when is enough enough?

Next week the PADHIA state board will consider becoming a member of Cooperative Resources International. CRI is made up of mainly AI groups and one DHIA and is based in Wisconsin. As a long time proud member of PADHIA I have many questions and concerns about this merger, a few of which I will list.

1. Who has control of the finances?'

2. Who sets the competitive boundaries?

3. Who hires and fires the CEO?

4. Who establishes employee benefit packages?

5. Who determines if PADHIA will continue to operate a processing center or a milk testing lab?

Dairy farmers are currently undergoing a lot of financial stress and quite often the logic for these organizational changes are sold to members as being more efficient and more cost effective. This may not always be the case. One thing is certain, once a change like this one is made, there is no going back to the status quo.

Now is the time for the members of PADHIA to contact their state directors and ask questions and express their opinions.

Do it today.

ARE YOU 'HALFWAY THROUGH'?
August 24, 1997

ARE YOU 'HALFWAY THROUGH?'

August 24, 1997

Background Scripture:
Hebrews 12:1-11
Devotional Reading:
2 Corinthians 4:7-17

Bennett Cerf, in The Sound of Laughter, tells of a youth by the name of Tommy Noonan who was having considerable success one summer mowing the lawns of people in the neighborhood. One afternoon, his mother thought he was taking his good old time about getting started, but Tommy replied: "I'm waiting for them to start themselves. I get most of my work from people who are halfway through."

I'm tempted to add, "So does God!" A lot of the work God is called upon to do is what we've transferred to him when the going gets tough for us, although I suspect that often we're considerably ahead of 'halfway through.'

I'm told that about 100 steps below the summit of Mt. Washington is a marker dedicated to a woman climber who, lost in a storm, lay down and died. She had no idea that a shelter hut was just 100 steps away. On a clear day the dimensions of the tragedy are starkly discernible. She died, not because she didn't realize how close she was to the end of her struggle. What she needed was not more strength, but the perseverance to go on when her strength seemed to fail her. Perhaps this woman's story can serve as a reminder to all of us that often we are much closer to our goal than we realize and we need to continue on, even though we cannot see the finish line. As the writer of Hebrews tells us, "let us run with perseverance the race that is set before us..." (12:1)

THE LONELY RUNNER

Many years ago there was a fine motion picture entitled, The Loneliness of the Long-Distance Runner. It is true that often we feel that we are all alone in running the race of life, but the writer of Hebrews reminds us that "we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses." The patriarchs and people of faith he has enumerated in Hebrews 11 are those who watch us run and they cheer us on, reminding us that as they persevered, so must we.

When running a race, my high school track and field coach always admonished us, "Don't look back!" Looking back may give us accurate information about what's behind us, but it is likely to cost us the race. He told us that looking back could hurt us in three ways: (1) we could easily break our stride, (2) we could stumble and even fall, (3) we might become disheartened and fail to do our best.

He was talking about running a race, but much of what he told us applies to life. Looking back is often the beginning of the end of our best efforts. Instead, we need to keep looking ahead toward the goal. Along the course there are obstacles as well as a goal. Obstacles are the things we see when we take our eyes off the goal. In any endeavor we must choose between being obstacle-oriented or goal-oriented.

THE PACESETTER

But some will say that the goal is always beyond our sight. So Hebrews says that we need to look "to Jesus the pioneer and perfector of our faith..." (11:2). Maybe we can't see the goal but we can focus our attention upon Jesus who has run the very same course before us. Hebrews calls him "the pioneer and perfector of our faith." Keeping the analogy of the race, another term comes to mind: Jesus the pacesetter. If we focus on how he ran the race and try to run it in the same manner, we can leave the goal to God.

In 1916, the great Irish Republican leader, Eammon de Valera, was arrested by the British while he was delivering a patriotic speech to his constituency. Sentenced to death, de Valera was sent to ill-reputed Wakefield Prison to wait for his execution. But, later the order was stayed and he escaped from prison. About a year later he returned to the very spot where he had been arrested and gathering his constituency about him, he began with these words: "Now, as I was saying when I was so rudely interrupted..."

Like him, we may be interrupted but that doesn't put us out of the race.

Horses From Across U.S. To Gather In Quentin

QUENTIN (Lebanon Co.) — Approximately 600 horses and their riders and drivers from as far away as Texas will compete at the 63rd annual Quentin Fall Horse Show in Quentin, Aug. 28 to Sept. 1.

The event showcases a number of breeds, disciplines, and styles of riding, and fills two and at times three rings with exciting equestrian competition each day of the Labor Day Weekend.

Spectators are invited to bring lawn chairs and a picnic to enjoy ringside as the horses, including jumpers, hunters, Saddlebreds, Morgans, roadsters and Hackney ponies, and their riders and drivers compete. The show also offers a playground for children, a food court, and shopping.

Competitors include children and adults, amateurs and professionals. Classes begin early each morning and continue well into the evening each day except Monday, Sept. 1, when there is no evening session. Hunters and jumpers compete daily on the flat and over fences during daylight hours, with under saddle and harness classes for Saddlebred, Morgans, roadsters, and Hackney ponies each evening, Thursday through Saturday.

Saturday, Aug. 30, three rings of competition for hunters and jumpers begin at 8 a.m. and continue throughout the day. Saturday evening, the focus turns to the main ring, where the evening begins with a jumper championship, followed by competition under saddle and in harness for Saddlebreds, Morgans, and roadsters.

The $7,500 Quentin Mini-Prix, a timed class over fences, will be held Sunday evening, Aug. 31. Also on Sunday, classes for hunters and jumpers ridden by amateurs and children will be held in three rings beginning at 8 a.m.

The show begins at 8 a.m. daily and daytime classes continue throughout most of the day. Evening sessions begin at 7 p.m. Thursday and Sunday, Aug. 28 and 31, and at 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Aug. 29 and 30. The show continues until at least 10 p.m. each evening except Monday.

Admission to the grounds is $1, and $3 Saturday and Sunday, August 30 and 31. Box seats in the covered grandstands are available for $5 per day on a space available basis. For more information, call (717) 867-5643 or phone the horse show office at (717) 273-1276 beginning Tuesday, Aug. 26.

Tioga Co. Correspondent

WHITNEYVILLE (Tioga County) — Nobledale Farm of Gillett took both premier breeder and premier exhibitor honors at the 1997 Northeast District Jersey Show held at the Tioga County Fairgrounds, Tuesday, Aug. 12.

"The quality of this show keeps getting stronger," said judge Dale Olver of the 80 head shown. "This is the third time I've judged this show and it seems to get better every time."

Designated grand champion the 12th annual show was Four Springs Juno Jasper, a junior 3-year-old owned by J. Craig and Susan Wicker of Centre Hall. Following her in the reserve grand champion position was 8-year-old Tin D Champ Dottie Donna, owned by Paul and Carolyn Moyer of Roaring Branch.

Among the junior animals, Brenda Robson Hodder's fall calf, Bren Delite Spice, was named the junior champion while Ryan Sprout's winter calf, Holmhurst Whistler Dandelion, was named the reserve junior champion. The junior champions were from Mansfield and Montrose, respectively.

In the youth show, Josh Kellerman of Centre Hall rose to the top with his junior 2-year-old, Four Springs Imperial Jaclynn. Following him was Eastmont Juno Debbie, a 5-year-old owned by Samantha Wilcox of Covington.

Northeast DHIA Farm Technicians Train

ITHACA, N.Y. — It is not difficult to find people willing to describe what Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA) testing was like — not that long ago.

In the early days the DHIA supervisor would visit the farm, weigh and sample the milk from every milking, test the fat of the milk using the "Babcock" method and even hand calculate each cow's record.

The work required a real commitment to the dairy farm, a knack for detail work and training.

The work for a Northeast DHIA technician is different now but the requirements are the same, especially the need for ongoing training.

"The last two years we have gone through a great deal to get our records services in the position to be more relevant to the dairies in the Northeast," said to Bill Hulslander, director of Northeast DHIA Farm Services. "We have been doing a great deal of training on the basics of our new system and recently we have begun training on some of the more sophisticated aspects of the computer program Dairy Comp 305."

Training programs are developed at the Northeast DHIA Center and then are presented to the eight region managers who are responsible for the Northeast DHIA Farm Service in their areas.

The region managers then work with farm technicians in small groups to present the material. The training units are designed to help technicians review and then practice different features of the software.

The most recent training units have covered building custom herd management reports and the use of the monthly Herd Monitor in Dairy Comp 305 that summarizes and tracks the herd's production and reproduction on the day the technician visits the dairy.

Field Day Held At Hershey

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Roundup Ready corn from Dekalb will available in some quantities for farmers next year and widely available in 1999, growers learned on Wednesday morning during the annual Reading Bone Agway Crop Day at the Milton Hershey School.

Roundup Ready soybeans are here already and producers are making use of them.

However, these kinds of technological advances in herbicide-resistant crops don't come without a price.

According to one seed sales representative, because of the research and development dollars invested, companies "are going to charge tech fees for these enhanced products."

According to Matt Grajewski, territory sales manager, farm seed with Agway Agricultural Products, regular soybean crop spray programs to reduce weeds amount to about $25 per acre at a quart use rate, roughly. With the use of Roundup Ready soybeans, the cost amounts to about $12-$15 to spray — per application. Additional follow-up applications could add up to the same cost as a regular program, according to the sales representative.

But Roundup Ready beans provide total weed control, because growers can go back in and clean up. It's especially useful in a "dry year like this," said Grajewski.

Although they could end up costing more per acre to use, in the long these products will save on long-term herbicide and insecticide use on the fields, according to several experts who spoke during a rain-soaked Wednesday morning at the annual Crop Day.

Grajewski showed nine different varieties of Roundup ready soybeans at the crop day, including five APK Agways and four Dekalbs. The varieties are mostly short season Group 3 to Group 4 varieties.

One plot showed the effects of using a preplant and starter fertilizer on corn. Others included large equipment inspections, a weed screen, a corn planting depth study, herbicide tests, and other items.

Grajewski noted that Roundup Ready corn will be available to growers in limited, trial amounts in 1998. Agway will have a plot of the corn at the Milton Hershey School test site next year. He noted that Dekalb will be the only company providing large quantities of the corn for planting in 1999, although other companies will also sell the corn.

About 180 growers and agri-industry representatives had a chance to see various demonstration plots covering forage and seed treatment. One plot showed the effects of using a preplant and starter fertilizer on corn. Others included large equipment inspections, a weed screen, a corn planting depth study, herbicide tests, and other items. Various herbicide, insecticide, and fungicide companies were also present with their products.

About 260 were registered for the crop day.

Maternal Sisters Are Champions At E-Town Fair

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

A pair of maternal sisters took grand and reserve grand champion honors at the Elizabethtown Fair Holstein show, Thursday. They were both bred by Hill-Top Farm of the Lowell Brubaker family, Manheim. But the reserve grand champion was the gift calf the Brubakers gave to the annual youth program of the Lancaster County Holstein Association.

The grand champion was the two-year-old Hill-Top Heritage Astre Bobbie for Lowell Brubaker. Judge Scott Cooper, York County dairyman, said he went with his first impressions of strength and udder on the young cow.

The reserve grand champion and grand champion of the youth show was three-year-old Hill-Top Heritage Star Gift bred by Brubaker and owned and shown by Heather Oberholtzer, Elizabethtown. Heather received the champion as a calf for her youth project work in 1990. Each year the Lancaster Holstein Association teams up with a local breeder to present a registered calf as incentive for youth to become active in the Holstein breed development.

The reserve grand champion of the youth show was shown by Denise Bollinger, Manheim, a four-year-old.

The junior champion of both the open and youth show was shown by Justin Howes, Elizabethtown. The reserve junior champion of the youth show was owned by Daniel Bollinger and the reserve junior champion of the open show was owned by the Brubakers.

Heather Brubaker was named the grand champion of the showmanship contest.

University Of Maryland Studies Precision Ag

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Agriculture is a highly competitive industry. Farmers are always looking for new techniques and technologies that will give them the edge they need to remain successful.

A team representing the public, private ... and personal ... segments of agriculture is engaged in a five-year project designed to determine whether one system of new technologies, called "precision agriculture" or "precision farming" can help farmers improve productivity and boost profits.

This new approach to crop production involves the use of computers and satellites of global positioning system (GPS) and geographic information system (GIS) technologies to identify various soil and crop requirements, pinpoint problems, and apply appropriate soil amendments or pest-control strategies in small sections of fields.

The remarkable thing about precision farming is, well, its precision. "It involves use of remote sensing, georeferencing, and aerial imaging to collect as many layers of information as possible on the variables that affect crop production," said Scott Quinn, a precision farming specialist with Lebanon Agricorp. "With the information provided by satellites and computerized farm equipment, producers can respond to problems early or even anticipate them before they occur."

Given such benefits, precision agriculture appears to be a potentially valuable management tool that could save farmers money and perhaps protect the environment through the targeted application of nutrients and pesticides. What's lacking so far is hard, on-farm data.

And that's why for the past year and a half, faculty with the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service and representatives of Lebanon Agricorp have been working with farmer Jonathan Quinn (Scott's cousin) on a precision agriculture demonstration project on the 354-acre farm he leases near Galena, Maryland. To keep the scope of the project manageable, the team is focusing on a single 165-acre cornfield at the Wicks Farm.

A Team Effort

The idea for the cooperative venture originated with Ted Haas, regional Extension agronomy specialist. "I would occasionally get quesitons from Extension educators about precision agriculture and I really couldn't help them much because I didn't have any direct, hands-on experience with GPS/GIS systems," he said. "It seemed to me that the best way to improve my knowledge was to be involved in a precision farming project."

Haas approached Jonathan, with whom he had previously worked. A self-described "guinea pig" in demonstration projects involving integrated pest management (IPM) and nutrient management, the 31-year-old farmer DuPont Mid-Atlantic Young Farmer of the Year award winner agreed to participate.

Scott; Jennifer Kemp, a Lebanon Agricorp research specialist and field scout; and John Hall, Extension agricultural educator from Kent County, rounded out the team.

What makes the project work so well, according to Haas, is the partnership of farmer, Extension, and industry.

"It's an excellent example of the kind of cooperation that will be needed to ensure agriculture's succes in the future," he said. "By working together, we can determine whether or not new technologies do or don't work in applied

Supreme Champion Selection

field Meats. Joelynn's brother Ryan Donough's reserve champion went for $375 to Hoss's Steak and Sea House.

Fourteen goat were sold over the auction block. The grand champion owned by Brian Geib of Manheim served a special purpose. The goat was purchased for $325 by Mrs. Walter Heistand who donated it back to be resold for $180 to Corestates Bank. The money was donated to Chiques Church of the Brethren's Disaster Relief Auction. Mrs. Heistand said that the purchase was in memory of her husband, who had always been involved in 4-H and who passed away five years ago.

Seven steers sold. John Messick of Middletown sold his 1,230 pound champion go for $1,750 to R.K. Vogt Grain of Marietta.

The reserve grand champion steer owned by Jessica Stoltzfus went to Hoss's Steak and Seahouse for $1,300.

Four pens of rabbits were auctioned. Howard Haldeman of Bainbridge paid $175 for his daughter Michele's three rabbits. "I couldn't stand the thought of the pets going for meat," he said of his fatherly gesture.

Lebanon Valley Bank paid $75 for the second-place pen of rabbits owned by Emily Algo of Mount Joy.

Throughout the four-hour auction, bidding was brisk and punctuated with lots of good-natured banter, laughter, and clapping inside the tent. But outside, many teary-eyed exhibitors walked away with bittersweet memories. They were grateful for the bidders who supported their efforts but sorrowful with parting with a project that had established a place within their hearts.

situations."

Each participant contribues to and benefits from the project. Jonathan provides the land and receives first-hand information from cutting-edge research at little or no cost.

Extension faculty share their research-based expertise on such subjects as IPM and nutrient management and secure grants to help defray costs associated with project, while increasing their practical knowledge about precision agriculture.

Lebanon Agricorp provides the essential technological hardware and software and the personnel to operate the equipment. The company also has reduced its fees for scouting and monitoring. In return, Lebanon gains valuable research information.

Getting Down To Work

Last year, team members performed grid sampling, installed a yield monitor, and collected yield data. This year, they are focusing their attention on IPM.

Using GPS-guided equipment, team members took 71 soil samples in 2.5-acre grids on a 165-acre cornfield, plotting the results on a computerized map. With the same GPS-guided computer, they were able to apply the appropriate amount of lime — ranging from nothing to 2 tons — in each of the field's 71 grid areas.

Infrared aerial images of the field show problem areas. With the GPS-guided computer and antenna in her backpack, Kemp, a former University of Maryland nutrient management consultant, locates these trouble spots from the ground.

She checks them to see what's actually happening — a process called "ground truthing" — looking for loss of plant quality, signs of disease or pest damage, and the presence of weeds. "Our goal," she said, "is to identify problems in their early stages — before they're obvious — and begin treatment."

And finally, at harvest, they measure yield. Last year, instead of the six yield recordings (one for each variety of corn) Jonathan might have collected in the past, he took 37,500 yield recordings, thanks to the computerized yield monitor on his combine that measures yields for each small section of the field. Properly calibrated, the yield monitor is usually accuate within 1 percent.

"The yield map produced by the monitor is like a final report card," said Scott. "It shows how we did in terms of managing the field for maximum yield and how we could do better."

Corn yields last year ranged from 70 to 215 bushels per acre. Although team members are still evaluating all the variables that could have contributed to such a wide range, Jonathan said he is already seeing the benefit of precision agriculture.

"I never realized how much weeds and some insects affect yield," he said. "From what I've seen during this project, they can cause a loss of 25 to 30 bushels per acre."

Jonathan also used last year's yield data to help him with variety selection decisions for three crops — corn, wheat, and soybeans — this year.

"The bottom line," he said, "is that I've got a product that I have to sell, and it's easier and more profitable to sell a quality product. From what I've seen so far, precision farming is a good management tool that helps me produce a better quality product."

Supreme Champion Selection Opens E-town Fair's Auction

The grand champion goat owned by Brian Geib of Manheim served a special purpose. The goat was purchased for $325 by Mrs. Walter Heistand who donated it back to be resold for $180 to Corestates Bank. The money was donated to Chiques Church of the Brethren's Disaster Relief Auction. With Brian and Mrs. Heistand is Fair Queen Carrie Davis.

Swine bidding topped at $565 Joelynn Donough's 241-pound grand champion hog, purchased by Tom Moyer of Hatfield Meats. Also shown is Fair Queen Carrie Davis.

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.)— "Unbelievable! Am I dreaming? Wake me up," mumbled Jessica Stoltzfus when judges selected her Dorset lamb as the supreme animal over all species at the Elizabethtown Fair.

For Jessica, Elizabethtown, the sale was the culmination of one success after another during fair week. With grand champions for sale, supreme ewe, supreme sheep over all breeds, reserve champion steer, and the final glory — supreme animal over breeds.

Before the livestock sale on Thursday evening, the grand champion cow, steer, lamb, pig, and goat entered the show ring while judges looked for the most complete species that could compete at state and regional levels. In the show ring with Jessica were John Messick with his Angus-crossbred Wizard, Heather Oberholtzer with her Hilltop Heritage Star Gift Holstein, and Brian Geib with his Boar cross goat.

Judges Wendall Landis, Alexa Kroutch, and Larry Poss said that all the animals were exceptional but decided that the Dorset ewe was the most outstanding.

The ewe was not sold at the sale, but Jessica had her grand-prize winning market lamb to bring into the ring. The 137-pound champion sold for $650 to Fox's Market of Middletown.

John Tracy's 111-pound reserve champion market lamb was purchased for $475 by Weaver's Insurance Co. John is from Elizabethtown.

Fifty-five lambs were sold over the auction block. Some of the animals sported hats, scarves, and one even wore sunglasses to attract potential bidders. Prices hovered mostly between $105 to $150. A few garnered more such as Radell Peter's Jacob's sheep that brought $320 from Fox's Market and Corestates purchased Sarah Zurin's for $220 and Kathy Musser's for $230 to donate back to the Lancaster 4-H banquet to be held in the fall.

Swine bidding topped at $565 for Manheim resident Joelynn Donough's 241-pound grand champion hog, purchased by Hat-

"Am I dreaming? asks Jessica Stoltzfus when judges select her Dorset lamb as the supreme animal over all species at the Elizabethtown Fair. Shown with Jessica is Virginia Groff of Groff's Meats of Elizabethtown, trophy sponsors for the annual event.

John Tracy's 111-pound reserve champion market lamb is purchased for $475 by Roger Slusher of Weaver's Insurance Company. Also shown is Fair Queen Carrie Davis.

John Messick of Middletown sold his 1,230 pound champion for $1,750 to R.K. Vogt Grain of Marietta. With John are his mother holding the halter, Vogt, his daughter Rebecca, who was last year's fair queen, and Fair Queen Carrie Davis.

Jessica Stoltzfus sold her grand champion sale lamb for $650 to Fox's Market of Middletown. With a representative from Fox's is Fair Queen Carrie Davis.

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Gusty winds, sheets of rain gushing off the tent tops, and ankle-deep mud didn't dampen participants' enthusiasm at the Elizabethtown Sheep Show on Wednesday.

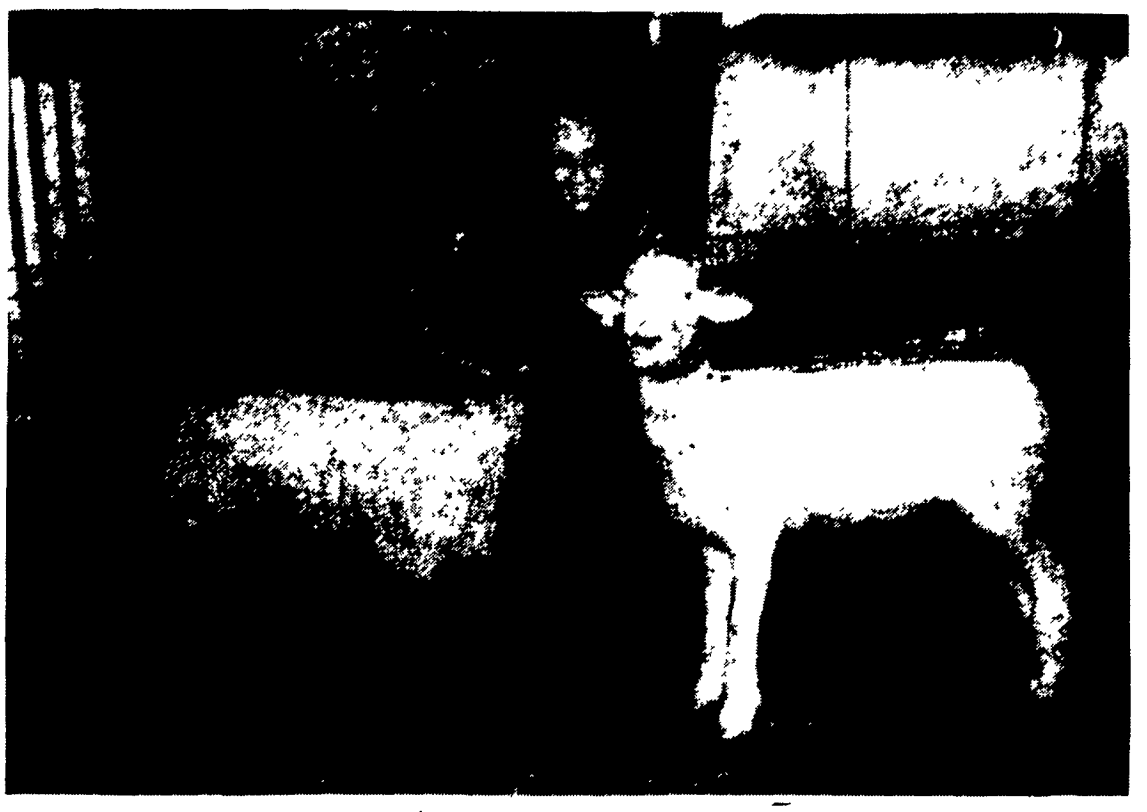
With 282 head of sheep, competition was stiff, but one would never have guessed it by the amount of ribbons Jessica Stoltzfus kept stuffing in her pockets. She couldn't hold all the large trophies and banners she received for showing the grand champion selling lamb, the reserve grand champion non-sale lamb, the supreme champion ewe in both the youth and open shows, and the supreme champion over all the show.

"I can't believe this," said 16-year-old Jessica, who started out the day by clinching the reserve champion steer honors.

Judge Rod Crome of Glen Arm, Md., commended Jessica's champion ewe, which later became the supreme champion over all sheep shown in sale, non-sale, and breeding divisions, for its length of body and musceling tone in lower leg.

"It has depth, clean lines and a beautiful Dorset head," Crome said of the Dorset lamb named Julie, purchased from Van Bair Farms in Dauphin. The champion selling lamb was from from Schlister Lambs of Ohio.

The daughter of Frank and Irene Stoltzfus of Elizabethtown has been showing for 10 years, and has won numerous championships, but this was by far the best show ever for her.



Although trophies, banners, and ribbons are not present in this picture, Jessica Stoltzfus and these two lambs swept plenty of honors at the Elizabethtown Fair. The lamb on the left was the grand champion selling lamb. The Dorset on the right won supreme champion ewe in both the youth and open shows, and was named supreme champion out of 282 entries.

Unlike many fairs, the E-town Fair holds competition for sale market lambs and non-sale market lambs in addition to breeding sheep. Lambs competing in the sale market lamb category must be sold at the livestock sale held Thursday evening. The non-sale market lambs are not sold.

Jessica and neighbor John Tracy battled it out in the show ring, during the sale lamb competition. John settled for the reserve championship with his Suffolk-cross named Snowball. Purchased as an undersized lamb from Blu-Acres Farm, Snowball has matured to impressive structure and correctness.

John, 12, is the son of Gerald and Helen Tracy of Elizabethtown.

Showing the champion non-sale market lamb was Corby Ziegler, Lititz. Corby, 13, and his brother Brandon have been winning champion lamb in some category at the E-town Fair for the last four years. The family's 12 sheep, which are purchased from the West, are divided among the two brothers and a sister Heather, who also has begun to show sheep.

"He's my favorite because he always comes up to me," Corby said of the Suffolk-cross named Chewy. "He chews on everything and now he's chewing on the (show) ribbons."

Corby's grand champion and Jessica's reserve non-sale champion will face each other again at the Manheim Community Farm Show in Oct.

Taking supreme champion ram honors was a Dorset spring ram owned by Jessica Schmidt, who also was showmanship champion in her age division.

Showmanship champions for the different divisions went to Tracy Zimmerman, 16 and over; Jessica Schmidt, 13-15 years; Adam Zurin, 10-12 years; and Jami Willard, 9 and under.

In her last year of competition, Tracy, 20, is the former Tracy Bollinger, who has been winning champion honors for the past 12 years in sheep competitions. Now married to Ryan Zimmerman, the couple raise purebred Dorsets in rural Manheim. Tracy works as a DHIA lab technician.

Jessica Schmidt, 15, is a repeat showmanship champion.

"I try really hard," Jessica said of her showing style that the judge referred to as really smooth and calm with the feet set at all times.

In his second year of showing

Showmanship champions for the different divisions went to Tracy Zimmerman, 16 and over; Jessica Schmidt, 13-15 years; Adam Zurin, 10-12 years; and Jami Willard, 9 and under.

Judge Rod Crome and Fair Queen Runnerup Heather Oberholtzer congratulate Jessica Schmidt for taking supreme champion ram honors was a Dorset spring ram.

Mid-West Expert Looks At Dairy Situation

Milk production continues to be very strong in the Southwest, West and Northwest. Compared to a year ago, August milk production was up 19.9% in Arizona, 9.2% in New Mexico, 8.2% in California, 8.7% in Idaho, 2.9% in Washington and 1 8% in Texas. Each of these states had very strong increases in milk per cow and more milk cows except for Texas where milk cow numbers were down 2.5%. Increases in milk per cow were:

Arizona, 13.1%; New Mexico, 6.5%, California, 5 5%, Idaho, 3.6%; Washington, 2%, and Texas, 4.4%.

Milk production in the South and Southeast also continues to be much improved over a year ago July milk production was up 7.3% in Florida.

Florida had 3.2% more milk cows and 3.9% more milk per cow. A year ago, milk cow numbers were down in Florida. Because of high feed prices Florida dairies were not purchasing replacements for culled milk cows July milk production was up 4.2% for both Kentucky and Missouri. Although both states still experienced lower milk cow numbers, milk per cow was up 7 3% in Kentucky and 6.5% in Missouri.

A year ago, the South and Southeast were experiencing decreases in milk production. As a result, the region experience a major shortage of Grade A milk for fluid purposes and had to bring in substantial quantities of milk from outside of the region, much of which came from Wisconsin July a year ago, there were 147 spot shipments of Grade A milk from Wisconsin to the Southeast compared to none in 1995 and none this year. Shipments increased to 314 loads in August and 310 in September. These shipments pulled milk away from cheese plants in Wisconsin and were a factor in increasing the Basic Formula Price (BFP). But spot shipments from Wisconsin are not a factor thus far this year.

Milk production in Wisconsin has was above a year ago for both June, 3.4% and July 3.5%. But milk cow numbers were down 56,000 head, or 3.9% lower. Wisconsin accounted for 82% of the decline in milk cow numbers among the 20 states. A year ago, milk per cow was doing poorly in Wisconsin, but this year July's milk per cow was up 7.6%

July milk production was up .9% in Minnesota, the net result of 2.5% fewer milk cows but 3.4% more milk per cow.

In the Northeast, July milk cow numbers were down .7% in New York and 6% in Pennsylvania. But respective increases in milk per cow of 4% and 2.5% resulted in increases in total milk production of 3.2% and 1.9%.

Despite this good milk production, increased cheese production, and ample inventories of cheese, the CME price of cheddar blocks increased 10.25 cents per pound thus far in August and barrels increased 11 cents. Since the beginning of July, cheddar barrels increased 22.25 cents per pound and barrels 21 75 cents. Butter prices are also up about 2 cents per pound from the July average.

Although the inventory of cheese is ample, the supply of new cheese is tighter. This along with indications of improved cheese sales may be the reasons why we have seen this strength in cheese prices. Retail prices of cheese continue to trend lower and should continue to improve sales.

Unless cheese prices decline during the last two weeks in August, not a likely situation, the August BFP should show considerable strength.

On August 14, CME cheddar barrels increased 6 cents to $1.34 per pound and within 5 cents of the $1 39 cheddar block price. This puts barrels closer to the normal barrel/block spread of 3 to 4 cents per pound and an indication that cheese prices will hold, if not increase further.

The July BFP increased just 12 cents to $10.86 per hundredweight despite a 12 cent per pound increase in the CME cheddar block price during July. But the July 31 CME increase of 1.5 cents per pound for cheddar blocks was not reflected in the July BFP. This is because the BFP base month price is adjusted by using the change in the value of NASS survey cheese prices and not the CME price. The NASS survey prices for a given week are not reported until the Friday of the following week. As a result, the NASS survey cheese prices used to adjust the base month price in July was about 4 cents per pound lower than the average CME cheese price for July. Hence, the July BFP increase less than I and some others had forecasted. But the good news is that there will be some catching up with the August BFP. I believe the August BFP could increase at least a $1.00 to about $11.86 per hundredweight. Further, I still believe the BFP could peak around $12.40 to $12.50 in October. The BFP cash settle futures price on the CSCE is more bullish than this being about $12.14 for August and $12.65 for October Let's hope the CSCE is correct.

Youth Wins Steer Show On First Try

Jessica Stoltzfus had the reserve grand champion.

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — On the first try at Elizabethtown Fair beef show, 10 year-old John Messick, Middletown, was successful. His medium weight steer named Wizzard was the grand champion of the show. The crossbred weighed in at 1,230 pounds. John is a fifth grader at Denny Elementary School. His parents are Joe and Dorothy Messick.

The reserve grand champion was shown by Jessica Stoltzfus, Elizabethtown. Jessica adds this win to her many other accomplishments. She won the Intell steer for showmanship at the county 4-H beef show two years ago, and just last week won the showmanship award from Lancaster Farming at the same show. She is the daughter of Frank and Irene Stoltzfus.

In the preview steers, Courtney Wolfgang had the champion and Jennifer Zimmerman had the reserve champion. There were 11 steers in the show. Judge John Housner, Dóver, said the quality of the show made up for the lack of numbers.

Placings are as follows:

Lightweight, 1. Mandy Grube; 2. Blaine Brown.

Medium weight, 1. John Messick; 2. Jill Hoffines; 3. Lynn Brandt.

Heavyweight, 1. Jessica Stoltzfus; 2. Nicole Eishenhower.

Preview, lightweight, 1. Courtney Wolfgang; 2. Blaine Brown.

Heavyweight, 1. Jennifer Zimmerman; 2. Jay Zimmerman.

John Messick has the grand champion steer with John Hausner, judge.

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Being on the cutting edge of technology continues to be the main objective at Pa. DHIA. Recently the milk urea nitrogen analysis received a new name, which is now the "Nitrogen Management Analysis Report."

Along with receiving a new identity, the report will now include two more columns, which include true protein, body conditioning based on days in milk, and lactation as well as groups which includes averages and totals.

Milk urea nitrogen is an indicator of protein efficiency in cows. MUN is influenced by the total intake of crude protein and by the amount and type of carbohydrate in the diet.

The average MUN value for a group of at least 10 cows should fall between 10-14 milligrams per deciliter of milk. The range of MUN values within the group of cows tested will depend on the average for the group.

True protein and body condition scoring continues to grow even more important as dairymen evaluate their nutrition programs.

Pa. DHIA has tested over 1,250,000 MUN samples to date while being the only DHIA with Internet access to MUN and true protein results. A MUN database and summary information can also be accessed through the Internet.

Work with your veterinarian and nutritionist to identify your herd's problems. You just might find that MUN levels might be useful in helping you pinpoint some problems. Please feel free to contact Pa. DHIA at 1-800-344-8378, if we can assist with your dairy operation.

Lebanon Holstein Holds Field Night

With this new barn full of good to excellent cows making about 100 pounds of milk each per day on three-times-per day milking, Scott and Karen Nolt of Annville served as host for the 1997 Lebanon County Holstein Field Night on Tuesday. Guest speaker was John Cope, former national president of the association who reviewed the state of affairs of the association and commented on the amount of change that has occurred in the industry and how much more he foresees, therefore requiring Holstein enthusiasts to be adaptable and creative. Almost 400 people turned out for the Tuesday evening event for fellowship and fun, as well as a chicken barbeque and pig roast feast sponsored by Monsanto and Cargill. In the men's division, the winners of the judging competition were Paul Zimmerman, Dale Himmelberger, and Karl Martin. In the women's division was Carol Ungemach, Pattie Maulfair, and Sharon Wampler. # PDPP Board Holds Breakfast Meeting

ROCK SPRINGS (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Board hosted a breakfast and informational meeting for dairy farmers Wednesday, August 13, on the grounds of Penn State's Ag Progress Days. The program gave an overview of the advertising and promotion programs funded by Pennsylvania dairy farmers.

Scott E. Higgins, COE, reviewed the PDPP Board's efforts throughout 1996 to increase demand for milk and dairy products. Guests viewed the "got milk?" television commercials. "Got milk?" is the first unified fluid milk advertising campaign, presenting one message to consumers across the country. The commercials promote milk as a must with favorite foods and target teens and young adults, ages 12-34. In addition, "Cheese to the Rescue" commercials were shown. This retail campaign drives cheese sales in supermarkets throughout the year.

Higgins also discussed the Penn State radio network advertising, reaching millions of loyal fans during football and basketball game broadcasts. Additionally, he reviewed other event sponsorships. "The PDPP Board is proud to create a positive dairy image by sponsoring events including the Tour de Teens bicycle races, the 96-97 Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association (PIAA) championship, and Breakfast with a Steeler, and program promoting school meals with appearances by Pittsburgh Steelers," Higgins says.

SUMMIT STATION (Schuylkill Co.) — A senior 3-year-old Holstein bred and owned by Timothy Vail of Lebanon was named senior and grand champion Wednesday of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's Southeast Championship Show, at the Schuylkill County Fairgrounds in Summit Station.

It marks the third show in a row — two of them open division — for Vail where his Holstein, Dalee-Bred Counselor Posie, was named grand champion.

She was also grand champion of the youth division Wednesday.

His first grand championship with her was in late July at the first Southeast District 4-H and FFA dairy show at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds. A little over a week later, at the same place, he won the top title with her at the Lebanon County open show.

Judge for the PHA championship show was Steve Shaw of Williamsburg, Pennsylvania.

Shaw's selection for open division reserve grand champion was the second place senior 3-year-old, Pennwood Conquest Dee, bred and owned by Donald and Joanne Stoltzfus, of the Morgantown area.

The Harvey W. Stoltzfus family, owners of the Pennwood prefix, were named premier breeder and exhibitor of the show, repeating that win from last year, as well as adding it to a growing list of wins for that distinction at the state's southeastern regional Holstein championship.

The reserve grand champion of the youth division was a 4-year-old, Reu-Hel Gabriel Surf, owned by Trisha Geist of Lebanon.

The junior champion of the show's open division was a winter calf, Ju-Vindale Marksman Hannah, owned by Amy Moyer of Womelsdorf. It was also the junior champion of the youth division.

The reserve junior champion was a fall calf, Reu-Hel Bellwood Ooo-Et, owned by Justin Troutman of Richland. His animal too,

Compact Coordinating Committee Forms

CORTLAND, N.Y. — At a recent meeting held at the New York State Grange headquarters, several farm organizations formed a New York State Coordinating Committee for the purpose of promoting the North East Dairy Compact.

The Dairy Compact has been operating in the six New England states since July 1 and dairy farmers are scheduled to reap benefits from the Compact during August.

Several members of the coordinating committee have worked on promoting the Compact for several years. John Hatbaway from the New York State Farm Alliance was selected temporary chairman of the committee. Other members of the committee are Kay Zeosky and Jaun Lee from the W.I.F.E. Organization, Carroll Wade, chairman of the New York State Grange Dairy Committee, Jay Burroughs from Jefferson County representing the Progressive Agriculture Organization, and Ken Dibble representing the Chenango County Farm Bureau.

Arden Tewksbury, manager of the Progressive Agriculture Organization (ProAG), attended the meeting and commended the group for forming the coordinating committee.

The group wants to add additional organizations to the committee. Hathaway said, "We intend to conduct several producer meeting during the fall of 1997 to promote the Compact."

Tewksbury said, "In my opinion, the main purpose of the Compact is to increase the price of fluid milk (Class 1) to our dairy farmers when the federal and state orders fail to generate a realistic price to the dairy farmers."

Tewksbury said, "I strongly feel the federal orders will never generate a realistic, stable blend price to our dairy farmers until the Basic Formula Price is modified to reflect the value of milk at the farm level."

The North East Compact Commission has established a $16.94 per cwt price for Class 1 milk in New England.

The members of the committee have been very critical of many of the retail prices for milk and dairy products. The ProAG manager said in northeastern Pennsylvania the selling price for fluid milk is $2.23 per gallon, "but we find in many New York State retail outlets selling as high as $2.65 per gallon."

Hathaway is urging my organization that want to work with the coordinating committee to call any of the members or to call the New York State Grange headquarters in Cortland.

What's New About The Flu

Drs. Sherrill Davison, Andre Ziegler and Robert J. Eckroade
Laboratory of Avian Medicine and Pathology
New Bolton Center
University of Pennsylvania
School of Veterinary Medicine

Avian Influenza (AI) is a viral respiratory disease of many species of domestic and wild birds. It is commonly found in migratory waterfowl world-wide. Historically, in commercial poultry flocks, turkeys are most commonly infected due to the practice of range rearing which permits comingling with wild birds. Only six outbreaks of AI have occurred in chickens in the United States prior to the current 1997 epidemic. The 1983-84 AI outbreak in Pennsylvania resulted in the depopulation of 17 million birds with a cost to the federal government of $60 million.

The current outbreak began in December 1996 when there was a traceback from the live bird market in New York City to a dealer's flock in Lebanon county. These birds were diagnosed with AI serotype H7N2 and were depopulated. Where possible it is thought that depopulation is the most efficient and rapid method of eradicating the virus before it can spread to another flock. Subsequent to that, a flock of commercial layers in the same vicinity was also diagnosed with AI (H7N2) and it too was depopulated. Then in March 1997, a flock of layers were diagnosed with AI in Lancaster County. The 1997 epornitic of AI in Pennsylvania was underway.

What's new about the flu? The virus is different, the lesions we see in the birds are different, and we have a new rapid test to help in the diagnosis.

The virus causing the 1997 infection was identified by the National Veterinary Services Laboratory as an H7N2 Avian Influenza Virus. They have also characterized it as non-pathogenic. When chickens were inoculated they did not die and had little or no disease. This virus is different from the one in 1983-84 which was identified as H5N2. In that outbreak, the H5N2 virus was also characterized as non-pathogenic in the early stages of the outbreak, but mutated to a highly pathogenic virus capable of killing 90% of the birds in an infected flock. The real danger of permitting the H5 or the H7 AI viruses to infect flock after flock is that it may again mutate to a highly pathogenic virus which could again shutdown the poultry industry of Pennsylvania or of the region. Other serious ramifications of this outbreak may affect non-tariff trade restrictions. None of these viruses can infect people

The second major difference is the lesions we have seen in the current outbreak. In the 1983-1984 outbreak, mucous and caseous material in the trachea was the most common finding in the low pathogenic form of the disease. During the current outbreak , tracheal lesions are uncommon. The "new" lesions which have been noted, include oviduct edema with purulent material in the oviduct, "watery" egg yolk peritonitis, congested and edematous lungs and mucoid/"watery" intestinal tract contents.

What is also important is for poultry producers to recognize the typical signs of H7N2 AIV infection in their flocks. The following is a list of historical and clinical signs we have identified as characteristic of the current infection.

Flock Histories Of Suspicion:

An increase in mortality. The mortality seen in the current disease is not as severe as that seen in the 1983-1984 outbreak, which in some cases was 90%+ within a week. The recent mortality pattern has been a doubling to tripling of the "baseline" mortality in a flock. For example, a flock "normally" losing 90 birds per week may be losing 180-270 birds per week.

Egg production drops may occur with the disease. Although not all of the cases seen demonstrated production drops, sudden drops of as high as 4% were frequently seen. This trend (decreasing production) may continue as the disease progresses, with some cases demonstrating 20%+ production drops over time.

Clinical Signs Of Disease:

The clinical signs are not those of the highly pathogenic H5N2 Avian Influenza epornitic that was seen in 1983-1984 in Pennsylvania. The 1997 virus, an H7N2 Avian Influenza virus, is one of low pathgenicity. This virus' ability to produce severe disease is much less than the previous one. Lesions that were suspicious of highly pathogenic

Avian Influenza: swollen combs, reddened shanks, sudden death on a wide scale, are not being seen in this outbreak and are not expected.

Respiratory disease can be seen in affected flocks. This may present itself as "snicking" in the house, rales, "drawbacks" or visible difficulty in breathing. This respiratory disease may start in a focal site and then spread through the house with time. The overall percentage of sick birds in the flock is frequently low, usually around 5-15%.

Other respiratory-associated signs of disease may occur. These might include lacrimation ("wet eyes"), conjunctivitis (inflammation of the tissues around the eyes) or facial edema (swelling). Although not strictly a respiratory lesion, cyanosis-a bluish discoloration-of the combs may be noted.

Some nonspecific signs of disease may be present. Some individuals have seen birds become weak, lethargic and depressed. Some producers have noted some of the birds "going down". While there may be many reasons unrelated to AI for birds to "go down" in the legs, this has, on occasion, been seen.

The third thing that is new about the flu in the use of a new diagnostic test.

The standard tests used to detect AI infection include virus isolation from tissues of the infected birds submitted to the lab and the detection of AI antibody in blood or egg yolk. In Pennsylvania, we have a routine surveillance program which asks poultry producers to submit either blood from all flocks when slaughtered for meat or eggs once a month from all layer and breeder flocks. These samples are tested for antibody, which tells us if an infection has occurred. It takes one to two weeks after infection for this test to be positive, but if done regularly, will let us know if flu is infecting our poultry unnoticed While this information is useful, it does not tell us if the virus is still present on the farm. When sick chickens are submitted to the lab and we suspect AI infection, we collect tissues and inoculate chick embryos to try to find AI virus. This may take one to two weeks, but must be done to confirm the identification of the virus.

There is now a new test to rapidly detect the presence of any influenza A virus. The test, called Directigen( (Becton Dickinson-Microbiological Systems, Cocknsylvania hosting the first national competition with four states participating.

Blue Mountain High School Team Is National Envirothon Champion

The team had to compete with 10 teams locally, 54 teams at the state competition and the 37 teams nationally. Pennsylvania was the founding state for the "Enviro-Olympics" (the name "Olympics" was dropped at the insistence of the World Olympics Committee) which later became "Envirothon," and some hold the opinion that state competition here is more intense and difficult than at the national level.

However, Envirothon competition is different at the state and national levels.

There are five "stations" — or areas of knowledge — that are included in both of the competitions.

Four of the five stations are the same every year — forestry, soils, aquatics, and wildlife. Every year a different fifth catagory of environmental science is added.

This year, the catagory was integrated pest management (IPM). Penn State Extension Pesticide Education Coordinator Kerry Hoffman, also widely known for her volunteer involvement and support of the FFA Foundation, developed the IPM curriculum for this year's national Envirothon.

She said the level of knowledge is deep, to the point of challenging professionals. She said that, since working on her doctorate, and as a result of feedback from those who worked with the pesticide curriculum she developed for the 1992 envirothon, she has been developing alternatives to chemicals to use in addition to the standard commercial application of IPM. The newer material was included in this year's national Envirothon curriculum.

(IPM works by providing growers with threshholds for pest control, so that pesticide use is targeted, rather than applied heavily as a total preventative, which is largely unattainable. The goal of IPM for the grower and crop manager is to save money, increase efficiencies, prevent the creation of pest resistance, as well as to provide a more environmentally and consumer sensitive approach to pesticide use.)

At the state level in competition, knowledge about each area was tested at different stations, along with a written examination.

At the national level, the teams are presented with problem-solving scenarios and are judged in their presentations as a team (18- to 20-minute presentations with effective, non-superficial participation by all members, followed by 10 minutes of questions from the judge) individually. The judges are professionals working in the actual station fields, representing various state or province and national organizations and agencies.

To prevent subjectivity in judging, the finalists repeat their oral problem-solving presentations before another judge.

The Blue Mountain team won with 617 points out of a possible 700.

The second-place team from Joppatowne High School in Joppatowne, Maryland, had 609 points. The third-place team from Coventry High School in Coventry, Connecticut, had 586 points.

Out of the five stations of testing, Blue Mountain was first in wildlife; tied for first in forestry with Coventry High School; second in soils and integrated pest management; and third in aquatics.

During the envirothon, the teams start with station testing, have a day of tours and educational programs, and then spend a day preparing for their problem-solving presentations. Prior to being given the scenarios, the teams attend presentations by top professionals.

After finding out the scenario for problem solving, the teams then are expected to recall the information given by the speakers, in addition to their knowledge of the other areas.

The scenario this year was to develop an IPM plan for a national park.

Hoffman said she was glad she didn't have to judge, because the level of competition was so intense. She said that she believes in the Envirothon competition strongly because it encourages students from all backgrounds to better understand their environment, something as important to the agricultural student as to the non-agricultural student.

"I wouldn't have wanted to be a judge," she said, adding that the judges included the IPM coordinator for the state Department of Agriculture, as well as an expert in the Penn State Department of Entomology.

Hoffman said the feeling she gets from getting to experience the knowledge and enthusiasm of the youth provides the incentive to volunteer for the program, as it does with her work with the FFA. "It restores your faith in the future."

Apparently, that works as an incentive for Luckenbill, also. He said that as science teacher he does have the opportunity to recruit potential team members each year, and he said he doesn't try to pretend to be an expert in all the areas, but to provide access to experts for his students, using the County Conservation District and its director, "Porcupine" Pat McKinney, as a conduit and hub for making it happen.

However, Luckenbill's team members and three assistant coaches said they consider Luckenbill to be as much, if not one of the main reasons, for the successes of teams coming out of Blue Mountain.

Luckenbill said he credits the support of the school district, which has envirothon programs in each of its elementary schools, as well as in its middle school.

All three of Luckenbill's volunteer assistants praised him for his ability to inspire. All three had been members of a previous Blue Mountain national championship team. All four work in an environmental or science-related profession.

They are Richard Ekert, 1993 Millersville University graduate, and currently a teacher at Manheim Central High School who took his summer break to help with the team; Bob Bylone Jr., an environmental engineer with Junkins Engineering in Morgantown; and Chris Brommer, a Blue Mountain High School mathmatics teacher.

Brommer was captain of the 1988 team. He said that Luckenbill has been more than a science teacher and an Envirothon team leader. He has served as a role model.

"I was already going to be a teacher," he said, but added that through his experience on the team and with Luckenbill, "(The experience) really put it in the forefront of my head to be the best."

Bylone said he credits his success then and his professional successes since "..not as much to (being a member of a national Envirothon team), as much as Mr. Luckenbill himself. Now there are two teachers here," he said referring to his fellow assistants, and the influence Luckenbill had on motivating them to pursue their dreams for achievement.

"His personal influence on myself has helped determine my career. He's the Joe Paterno of the Envirothon."

He also an Eagle Scout, and the three assistants are were Scouts, another youth development organization that, like FFA and 4-H and Envirothon competitions, help teach personal achievement and goal setting, as well as team playmanship.

"He has a distince way of trying to inspire someone," Ekert said. "It's a tone. He can transfer his energy into yourself and help you achieve better things."

Hoffman said that national Envirothon co-chairs, Joanne Nardone with the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection, and Lorelle Steach of the Bedford County Conservation District did a fantastic job preparing a full and educational program on behalf of Pennsylvania.

"They were the brains and the brawn," she said for the largest Envirothon to date.

For herself, Hoffman said the program offers a lot of FFA students, agricultural students, and all students, because it does teach about the environment, as well as information that can just provide for a better living experience.

"I would like to stay involved with it. It's hard to not to want to beleive in it. It does so much for the kids and so much for the future because that's what they are. If we don't do a good job teaching these kids about the how environment works, we will be doing them and ourselves a great disservice."

Other sponsors and technical supporters of the 1997 national Envirothon were the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown, local conservation districts, Monsanto, U.S. Forest Service, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the National Association of Conservation Districts, the Concurrent Technologies Corp. of Johnstown, the state departments of Conservation and Natural Resources, PDA, the Fish and Boat and Game and State Conservation commissions.

The site for the 1998 Envirothon is to be in Michigan, specifics to be announced.

FARM FORUM

I came across a letter to the editor in a May 16th farm paper which started as follows, "The first week of May turned out to be somewhat rewarding to dairy farmers."

The editorial attributed to Arden Tewksbury was giving credit to his organization, Pro Ag, along with others like NFO and Farmers Union for convincing Secretary Glickman to use a nationwide survey of cheese plant prices (NASS survey) in determining the Basic Formula Price (BFP) instead of the price set by cheese sales on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange (CME), which had replaced the long-used National Cheese Exchange (NCE). This would have the net effect, according to Tewksbury's faulty analysis, of increasing the BFP and, thus, our milk prices by 50 to 60 cents. "Finally," Tewksbury crows, "prices may be headed in the right direction. Equally important is the fact that something positive has been done for dairy farmers." This happened despite the skeptics who opposed Pro Ag's efforts.

Let's see how "rewarding" and "positive" Pro Ag's efforts have been for us hard-working dairy farmers. First, the NASS survey price has consistently been below the CME price and so it has had a negative impact on the BFP and, thus, our price. Strike one!

Secondly, there is a time delay in translating price increases on the CME to the BFP. The July BFP, for instance, went up only 12 cents/cwt even though the CME increased to 10¼ cents/lb. of cheese, which should have been closer to 50 cents/cwt. in price. We lost again! Strike two!

Thirdly, California producers' milk prices will rise faster than ours because they were wise enough to keep their pricing system based on the CME instead of the NASS survey price. This will only encourage those large producers to continue increasing production, which will further pressure the cheese price downward, forcing our smaller family-operated farms to try to survive on even lower prices. California's increased production this spring over last year amounted to 20 to 25 carloads of extra cheese per day. Strike three!!!

Policies which sound good on the surface such as villainizing the Green Bay National Cheese Exchange and switching from the exchange price to the NASS price as a BFP component, which are championed by a few radical groups with short-sighted and incompetent analysis have shot the majority of us dairy producers in the foot. Hopefully, we can be warned before these self-proclaimed saviors come up with some other good sounding, well-intended quick fix that proves to be the fatal heart shot.

With an early warning, we can put out a "For Sale" sign before any more of these "positive" and "rewarding" schemes cost us everything.

Prices High At Combined Livestock Sale, Milk Auction

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Tioga Co. Correspondent

WHITNEYVILLE (Tioga County) — Prices were strong throughout the 1997 Junior Livestock Sale and Milk Auction held at the Tioga County Fair Aug. 9.

Commanding the highest sale average were the seven market lambs which were led by the grand and reserve grand champions.

The lambs averaged $2.585 overall with the grand champion bringing a show stopping $5.75 per pound. Brooks Forest Service purchased the 96-pound champion from 4-H member Bryan Fitch of Roaring Branch.

The reserve grand champion lamb followed closely behind the champion, and was sold to C&N Bank of Wellsboro for $5 per pound. Trisha McIlwain of Liberty sold the 106-pound reserve grand champion lamb.

Prices ranged from the high commanded by the grand champion to $1.025 per pound.

Bringing in the highest price per head were the 10 market steers. While the steer sale average hovered at just under $1 per pound, the grand champion raised by Lauren Webster of Wellsboro brought $1.30 per pound. The 1,079-pound steer was purchased by Cornell Brothers Agway.

Bidding on the 1150 pound reserve grand champion steer stopped five cents higher bringing $1.35 from John Sharp Plumbing and Heating. LeAnn Tice of Lawrenceville raised the reserve champion.

While the reserve champion brought the highest price of the day, the prices stayed high throughout the sale. The low dipped to 80 cents per pound.

Hogs ruled the day according to numbers of animals sold. A total of 35 market hogs including one donated hog crossed the auction block, two of which were donated back to be sold a second time, bringing the total to 37 hogs.

An average of $1.19 per pound was carried by the 269-pound grand champion hog which brought $3 per pound. Duane Graves Jr. of Little Marsh sold his champion to First Citizens Bank.

The reserve grand champion brought $2.50 per pound. Matthew Helf of Wellsboro sold the 236-pound champion to Northeastern Farm Credit.

While the champion hog brought the highest price, the low price stayed well above market price, only dipping to 70 cents per pound.

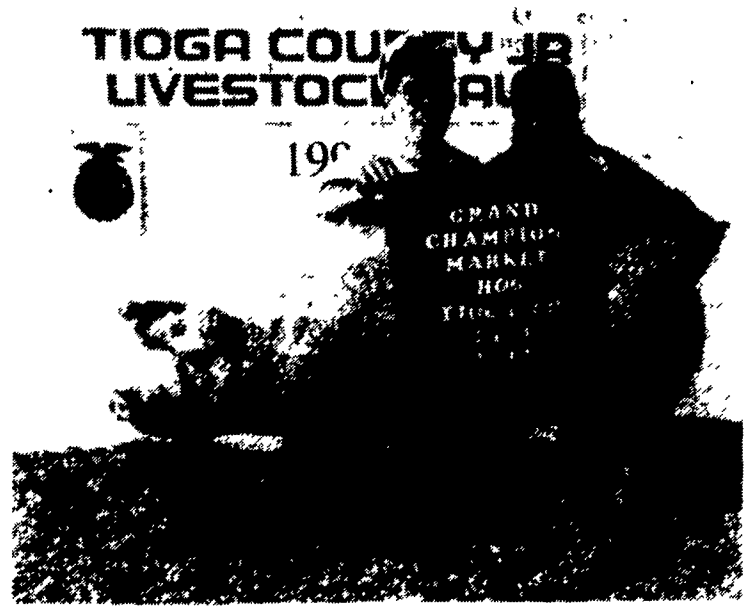
In the seventh annual milk auction, milk from Trisha McIlwain's grand champion commanded the highest price, bringing in $475 from Pelton Trucking.

The second high price came from Judson's Incorporated, who purchased the milk from Christie Wilcox's grand champion Jersey for $350.

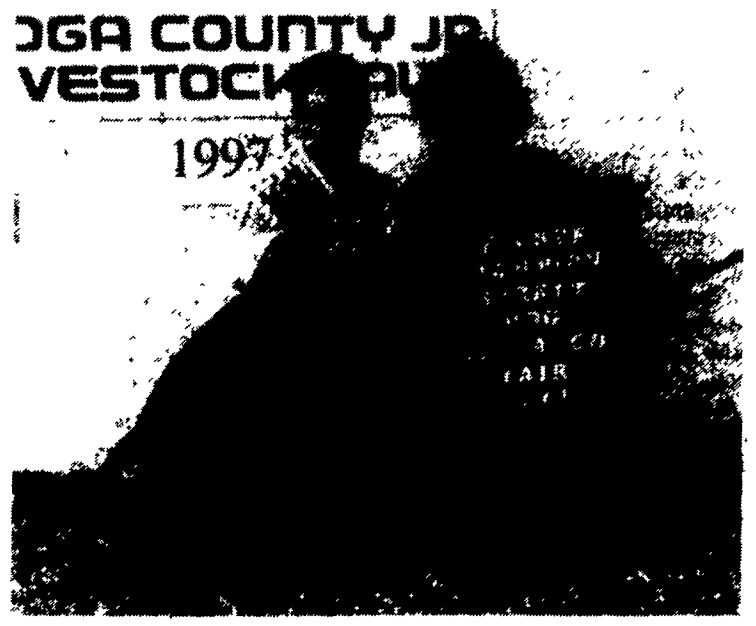
Milk each dairy champion brought in a total of $1,800 for an average price of $300.

Money from the milk auction is divided between the exhibitor, the exhibitor's 4-H club or FFA chapter, and the county 4-H or FFA program.

The grand champion steer shown by Lauren Webster was purchased by Steve Cornell of Cornell Brothers Agway for $1.30 per pound.



Duane Graves, left, sold his champion hog to Jim Hepp representing First Citizens Bank. The animal sold for $3 per pound.



Matthew Helf sold his reserve grand champion market hog to Northeastern Farm Credit, represented by Bonnie Kell.

Donough Duo Team Up To Sweep E-town Swine Show

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Joelynn Donough and brother Ryan teamed up to make the dynamic duo.

Well, not the duo of "Batman" lore; there were no utility belts involved; and the only thing "mobile" were the hogs themselves.

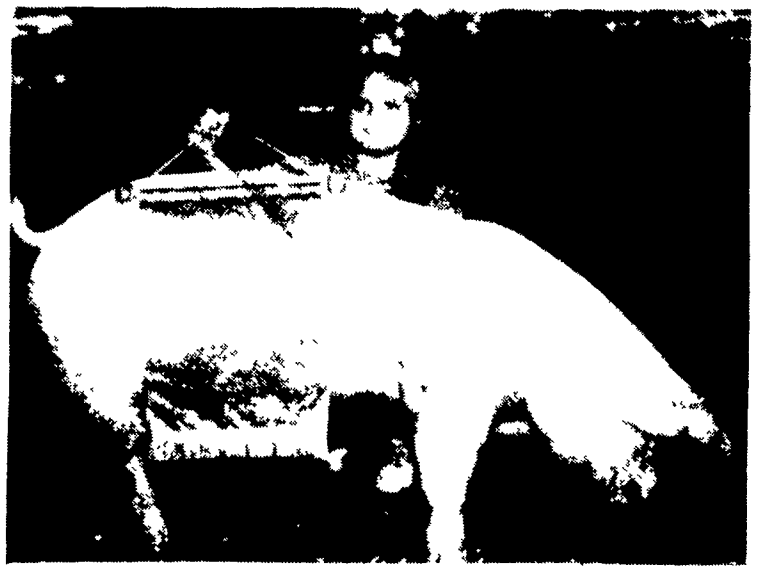
But when swine judge Nelson Beam of Elverson turned to the medium weight class champion at the Elizabethtown Fair Swine Show on Tuesday night, he knew he had a winner.

"That's an extremely good gilt," he said about Joelynn's champion. "It shows me a lot of muscle and width, and depth in all portions of the ham."

This all happened before, of course, Joelynn's brother Ryan's "real good pig" picked up reserve champion from Beam.

Joelynn, 9, daughter of Ed and LaRue Donough, Manheim, became a hero Tuesday night with "Dumbo," a York crossbred from Oscar Manbeck, Bethel.

Joelynn, in the fourth grade at Sporting Hill Elementary, won her first champion at the fair. This is her second year in 4-H and she plans to show at Ephrata Fair, Manheim Farm Show, and the state Farm Show.



Joelynn Donough, 9, daughter of Ed and LaRue Donough, Manheim, became a hero Tuesday night with her grand champion hog, "Dumbo," a York crossbred.

Ryan showed the reserve champion, "Kiss," the light heavyweight champion. As to it's name, Ryan, 13, said that "my sister or mom named it, I'm not sure."

Ryan, in the 8th grade at Manheim Central Middle School, picked up his first championship at Elizabethtown.

When Beam picked Ryan's hog as light heavyweight champion, he liked its structure, it's leanness, "a real outstanding pig," said Beam.

Both hogs were York/Landrace crosses, according to their father, Ed. Incidentally, it was the first time a Donough brother and sister duo swept the fair hog show.

In all there were a total of 47 exhibitors and 115 hogs. Following is a list of show placings.

Ryan Donough showed the reserve champion, "Kiss," the light heavyweight champion.

News From New Bolton Center...

School of Veterinary Medicine

eyville, Md) is an enzyme immunoassay membrane test developed for use in people. We became aware of this test at the Mid-Atlantic Poultry Health meeting in February 1997. The demonstration was dramatic and revealed that the test is rapid (taking about 20 minutes), and easy to perform, but was marketed for human medicine and was very expensive. The test kit costs about $25 per test. We obtained a test kit as soon as we came back and tested the samples from the Lebanon county layer flock, which demonstrated positive test results. Since then, our lab has used it on the subsequent AI infected flocks and it seemed to work quite well. Initial evaluation of the Directigen( test compared to virus isolation indicated that the standard virus isolation is more sensitive but the Directigen( test is usually test positive on multiple tissues from AI virus positive flocks. There have been no false positives, so we can be confident if we get a positive test, but cannot be absolutely sure if the Directigen( test is negative. As we gain more experience with this test, we believe this will be a useful adjunct to our standard AI diagnostic tests. A manuscript is in preparation comparing the Directigen( with virus isolation. Since our early work with this test, we have found that the University of Pennsylvania contract price for the kit is only about $10 per test and now most labs are using the test routinely.

As a final note, continued vigilance by flock owners, service persons and other flock health representatives will ensure the greatest likelihood of eradication of this virus in commercial poultry. It is essential that these individuals continue, as planned, with the surveillance and testing efforts implemented by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture in conjunction with the PADLS diagnostic laboratory system .

Stoltzfus Sweeps Supreme And Market Lamb Titles At E-town

and as many showmanship ribbons, Adam Zurin, 10, enjoys working with the 10 sheep he and his sister, Sarah, keep on their parents, Judy and Gary Zurin's home.

Showmanship honors for the youngest category went to Jami Willard, 10. She and her sister Erin, 12, raise Hampshires and are the children of Julie and Brian Willard of Lawn.

Judge Rod Crome, who has exhibited and judged from coast to coast and has shown two supreme champions in the North American sheep competition, remarked on the high quality of the show. Many exhibitors voiced appreciation for Crome's quick and complete appraisal and his ability to explain his choices in an easy to understand manner.

Sheep show results will be published in next week's issue of Lancaster Farming.

Fair Queen Runnerup Heather Oberholtzer congratulates Corby Ziegler, who shows the grand champion non-selling market lamb.

Maybe champion genes are carried by the wind because John Tracy who lives across the field from Jessica Stoltzfus, who showed the grand champion selling lamb, clinces the reserve champion title with this Suffolk-cross. Holding the trophy is Fair Queen Runnerup Heather Oberholtzer. At left is Rod Crome, nationally-known sheep judge.

Milk Price Volatility: How To Manage It

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — One of the few guarantees concerning your milk price is that it is extremely volatile. How you manage these price swings will help determine the future success of your dairy operation.

The use of dairy futures will probably become the most common method for producers to limit milk price fluctuations in the future. This management tool will become even more important as the government price support programs for dairy are phased out.

Beginning this year, both the Coffee, Sugar, and Cocoa Exchange and the Chicago Mercantile Exchange began offering a milk futures and options contract. These contracts allow you to offset your cash price with a secured futures price. By knowing your future milk price your budgeting and cash flow projections can be much more accurate. This is beneficial when considering a major capital investment and projecting loan repayment ability.

To help producers understand this concept. The University of Wisconsin has scheduled a satellite videoconference "Managing Price Risk-Using Dairy Futures," for September 8 from 1:30-4 p.m. This broadcast will be downlinked to the Lancaster County Extension Office and the Adams County Extension Office.

Topics to be covered during the program include:

-How a BFP milk futures contract works

-How hedging can balance the cash market against the futures market

-How to lock in prices for future milk production

-How to use options to protect against price decreases

-How to participate in futures market and establish an objective plan for long-term price risk strategies.

Registration fee at either location is $4 per person. Checks may be made payable to "Agricultural Extension Fun." Deadline for reservations is September 1, 1997. Questions regarding the seminar may be directed to either Extension office.

Penn State is an affirmative action, equal opportunity university.

Formula Helps Youth Determine Break-Even Costs

CALDWELL, Ohio — A simple mathematical formula can help youth understand the economics behind market livestock projects, according to an Ohio State University 4-H youth development specialist.

The high prices paid for grand champion animals has made winning synonymous with profit, said Chuck Bell. In some cases, that's translated into people paying ever-high prices for project animals without regard to basic economics.

Before buying an animal, youth and parents need to understand how the purchase price affects any potential profit or loss, Bell said. To teach this information, Bell and colleague David Miller, a farm management specialist at Ohio State, devised a series of materials that help people easily calculate the possibility of making profit, or at least breaking even.

Separate handouts for steers, feeder pigs and lambs chart the necessary sale price per pound, given the purchase price of the animal, feed and miscellaneous needs. The handout also provides the formula — total costs divided by finished weight of the animal equals break-even sale price — so youth can figure their own break-even point. The same information is incorporated into a hands-on, three dimensional exhibit.

"Advisers and parents can use the teaching materials to help youth understand potential profits and potential risks of raising animals," Bell said. "It's partly economics and partly awareness of what you are willing to spend. And, it's one way to refocus market livestock projects on responsibility, proper husbandry practices, and the business of raising animals."

This information was presented at the national meeting of the American Society of Animal Science, held July 28 to Aug. 1 in Nashville, Tenn.

DAIRYMEN SAY YES AS TESTING PERIOD NEARS END

As I am writing this, there are hundred and hundreds more Dairymen testing Formula M. The results are trickling in. By the time you read this, we may have the final results. I have been testing Formula M for years and all the results have exceeded my expectations in appetite improvement; higher energy level; giving more milk; cows (even the extremely difficult or next to impossible ones) getting pregnant on the first breeding.

AND NOW!!! Dairymen everywhere are telling me that the Somatic Cell Count goes down when they feed Formula M. Over and over, I am hearing that the Somatic Cell Count goes way down. Dairymen tell me that they have tried other products and that they thought they saw some benefits, but the same Dairymen tell me that they see very dramatic differences almost immediately when using Formula M. Dairymen say they see a vast improvement in energy level and appetite. They say that they can see a significant increase in milk in a week to ten days after starting on Formula M. Some Dairymen say their cows average 5 pounds more milk per cow, per day. The last reports I am waiting for are on Somatic Cell Count. They keep coming in and they keep verifying what we have been told many times before, that the Somatic Cell Count goes way down when feeding Formula M.

If I had known all this before I set the price, (8¢ per cow, per day) I might have charged more. After all, it looks like most Dairymen will make an extra $1.00 per cow, per day.

Formula M is a powder and it comes in a 5 gallon plastic bucket. Feed Formula M according to the directions on the label, only ½ ounce per cow per day. (Formula M is very concentrated. ½ ounce per day is all they need). You can put Formula M in the TMR, you can put it in your grain mix or if you prefer, you can top dress Formula M. All you need to do to get Formula M is call one of the numbers below. We ship the same day by UPS. Make the check payable to FRANK LAMPLEY and give it to the driver when he delivers.

A 5 gallon bucket is enough for about 40 cows for one month and costs only $92.00 (I pay freight). Formula M is completely free of drugs and made by the same people who make Vitamix.

There is one question that keeps coming up over and over, "How long do I have to keep feeding the Formula M?" "Forever?" The answer is, "Only as long as you want to keep making the extra dollar per day, per cow."

German Vet Student Practices In Belleville

Bodo's mentor and friend, Dr. Guttroff (right) helped Bodo turn textbook learning in to practical experience.

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — Performing surgery on twisted stomachs. Checking cows for pregnancy again and again. Spaying and neutering cats and dogs. Bodo Heusmann of Germany expected to do these things during his practicum through the Big Valley Animal Hospital near Reedsville, Mifflin County.

He never thought, though, he'd be making hay the Amish way, raising a barn, visiting the 2,000-cow Mason-Dixon farm, and meeting an assortment of "some very clever and some very stupid farm dogs!"

Bodo stepped onto American soil in April of this year. After four an a half years as a veterinary student in Germany, he was ready for some hands-on experience. He knew he's be in the United States for six weeks and that he's enjoy the hospitality of J. Loren and Wanda Yoder of Belleville. What he didn't know was that his stay would extend to three months, and that he'd still not want to leave!

"I have learned a lot," Bodo says in his strong northern German accent. "You have a lot of twisted stomachs around here because of the way you feed the cows. We have 'structure," longer fiber in the cow feed in Germany.

"It's also interesting how you try to achieve sterility in a barn before operating. In Germany, it depends on the person. Some think it takes too much time and you can't achieve it. Here, no antibiotics after major surgery is a sign of clean work.

I've also learned how to manage a practice. No one tells you how to do that in school."

Bodo worked with Dr. Anthony Potorti, owner of the Big Valley Animal Hospital, and Dr. Robert Guttroff.

"Doctors Potorti and Guttroff work well together. The practice is very organized and professional. They're very friendly with their clients and very open with information. You don't see people doing this in Germany. Potorti and Guttroff just tell the client what they know and let them take part in the decisions."

Doctor Potorti began practicing in Big Valley nine years ago. Doctor Guttroff joined him four years ago and speaks for both of them.

"We've really enjoyed Bodo's company and help. He's had a good experience here. The transition from books to practical knowledge is sometimes difficult. We've seen him grow and mature with experience."

Bodo's connection to Central Pennsylvania began with his brother's 1988 visit to the Yoder farm. Bodo was raised on an average-size 95-cow German dairy farm. His brother now farms the home farm. Bodo knew he wanted to stay in touch with farmers, so he decided to become a veterinarian. His practicum in America was J. Loren's idea. J. Loren presented the idea to Dr. Potorti before contacting Bodo.

"We really hate to see him go," says Wanda. "Our experience (of sharing our home with new friends from other countries) keeps getting better each time!"

When Bodo returns to Germany, he will take with him a Daphne Marthouse print, a Swiss hoof knife, a good halter from Peachey's Harness Shop, some whoopie pies, and Big Red gum, and some very special memories.

"I made hay at Ezra Hostetler's. They used a track exactly like the one hanging in our barn at home. Now I know how to use it!

"The Amish were really impressed that I could read from their German Bible, too. Even though they speak a southern dialect, we both read the same Bible."

Bodo also took some copies of Lancaster Farming back to his brother in Germany. Later on, though, he hopes to surprise him with a special issue.

"Maybe this article will make front page," Bodo said with a laugh.

Thelma Lafferty Always Has A Best Of Show

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Great-grandmother Thelma Lafferty, began entering the Bedford Fair competition about 10 years ago.

"I can't remember exactly," she says. "But, I know I never entered that I didn't win a "best of show."

While she began with her prize-winning quilts, Thelma has expanded her entries to include wall hangings and various items in the culinary arts department.

At the 1997 fair, she had a total of nine ribbons, two best of show, five blues and two reds.

Her entries included a wall-hanging, crib quilt, embroidered quilt, cinnamon pickles, sugar cookies, raisin bar cookies, and her two best of shows, a "Japanese Fruit Pie," and "Everything Cookies."

"I wasn't going to enter any baked goods this year," she says, "but, Mr. L. (her husband) thought I should. He told me that if no one enters there wouldn't be a fair."

Thelma is also in agreement with the idea of selling the baked goods to help the 4-H. That way nothing goes to waste.

Below are the recipes which won her the "best of show" ribbons this year.

JAPANESE FRUIT PIE

2 sticks of butter (melted)
2 cups sugar
4 eggs
1 cup raisins
1 cup coconut
1 cup nuts
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon vinegar

Mix together and put in two regular deep pie shell crusts. Bake at 325 for 45 minutes.

EVERYTHING COOKIES

1½ cups low-fat granola
1 cup golden raisins
1 cup old-fashioned rolled oats
1 cup chocolate chips
1 cup walnut halves
½ cup peanut butter
1⅔ cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup packed dark-brown sugar
¼ cup granulated sugar
1 cup (2 sticks) unsalted butter, cut into small pieces
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla

Preheat oven to 375. Toss together the granola, raisins, oats, chocoalte chips, walnut halves and peanut butter chips in a large bowl until well combined.

Sift together the flour, baking soda, baking powder and salt into a small bowl; stir with a whisk to combine the ingredients well.

Place the brown sugar and granulated sugar in a food processor (or use the large bowl and electric beater). Whirl to combine. With the processor running, add butter, a few pieces at a time, whirling until smooth and creamy. Add the eggs and vanilla. Whirl until incorporated, scraping down the side of the bowl as needed. Add the flour mixture. Pulse with on-and-off motion until just combined.

Scrape mixture from the food processor into the bowl that contains the chocolate chip mixture; stir to combine the ingredients well.

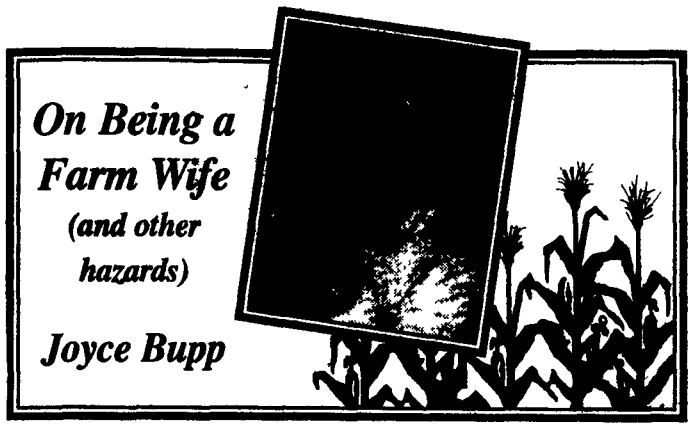
Shape the dough into 2-inch balls; place the dough 2 inches apart on ungreased baking sheets.

Bake in preheated 375 oven for 12 to 15 mintues or until light brown.

Cool the cookies on the baking sheets on a wire rack until firm enough to lift spatula. Transfer the cookies with a metal spatula to a wire rack to cool completely.

Thelma Laffery with her Amish boy wallhanging which won her a blue ribbon and a display of her 1997 ribbons. She has a chest full of ribbons won at the Bedford Fair and other competitions over the past 10 years.

HOMESTEAD NOTES



This is war.

When it comes to co-existing with animals, we have enjoyed our years here on the farm relatively free of the people-animal conflicts that we periodically hear or read about elsewhere.

But, this is war.

Unlike many parts of the state, we are not plaqued with herds of deer maurauding our young corn or gobbling up our alfalfa. (Thank goodness, because there isn't much of either in this almost rainless summer.) Nor have we ever — unlike our son when he spent a year in a mountain valley house during his last year at Penn State — watched black bears visit our fields and flatten large patches of corn.

And, only one pair of Canada geese settles here at a time. And they have always remained at the pond or around the meadow, and then departed as soon as their gosling were raised and airborne, thus posing no problem of any sort.

Rabbits are a bit more plentiful this year than in some past, perhaps because our burdgeoning fox population of recent years seems to have been brought under control by a local fur trapper. The relatively few bunnies we see hopping around the fields, and occasionally up through the back yard, remain just novel enough to be a pleasure to watch.

Squirrels, which once only could been seen along the edge of the neighborhood wooded housing development, did move into the backyard after the extremely severe/blizzard-prone winter of a few years back. While they gobble up sunflower seed from the feeders by the pawsful, they are still too few in number to be a problem.

We are grateful that there are no herds of elephants dancing across our safari grounds, no alligators have ever been spotted hulking around the pond, and we've never had an escaped boa constrictor turn up in the bathroom or gobble up one of our pets (Thank goodness!). Recent news blurbs report a rash of adventurous boa constrictors lately, it seems.

But now, this is war.

See, there's this matter of the garden groundhogs.

Our groundhog population has exploded into an army the last year or two, possibly somewhat a result of few foxes. A sharpshooter neighbor keeps his hunting skills honed on these rodents which can chew up a quarter-acre of soybeans each and dig tractor-jarring holes quicker than a backhoe operator running in high gear. We've spent considerable time and money on elimination attempts of these crop-gobbling pests.

But all our efforts have come to naught around the garden. And while the resident woodchucks nibbled my peas last year, they have now taken on the really good stuff. We suspect it has to do with the dryness of their normal grazing grounds, but every tomato that began to turn bright orange turned up with a big hole chewed out of its side. Green tomatoes weren't off limits, either. One day I draped the back half of the tomato row in plastic netting. The holey-tomatoes disappeared.

For about a week. Then an occasional chewed tomato turned up, along the edges of a stalk or a spot not covered by the nylon netting. Still, I could live with sharing a few, and figured I'd won that battle.

But his is REALLY war.

Last week, I found the first ripe cantaloupe in the patch I've carefully tended and handwatered, a nice, big, fat, juicy one. With half of it gone and telltale teeth marks scalloping the remains just as neatly as if it had been decoratively carved. After the third chewed cantaloupe, I draped more yards of net wrap around the melon patch. When I found the fourth, I threatened to go ballistic. Unfortunately, I've never learned sharpshooting and don't have time to go pistol-patrolling through the garden round-the-clock.

This is war.

D'ya suppose any of those adventurous boa constrictors might have a yen for fresh groundhog?

Penn State Graduate Students' Projects Get Lift From NASA

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Four graduate students in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences are finding "out of this world" support for their terrestrial research projects. The students have been awarded NASA Space Grant fellowships for the 1997-1998 academic year.

"I often get the question, 'What in the world does your research have to do with NASA?'," says Charles Ruffner, graduate student in forest resources. Ruffner is studying how humans affect the mixed oak forests of Pennsylvania's Allegheny Plateau by examining long-term climate and vegetation changes. These changes are of interest to NASA with respect to current trends in global warming and pollution, Ruffner says.

Other students receiving grants include:

•Carter Miller, graduate student in horticulture, is examining how fertilizer use can be minimized for efficiency while also improving the ability of plants to grow and react to environmental stresses.

•Christina Wells, graduate student in plant physiology, is studying underground pests that feed on tree roots. She is focusing her research on tree species that are important to Pennsylvania's economy and ecology, such as apple trees. She also is examining the protective chemicals released by tree roots to defend against such pests.

•Michael Demchik, a graduate student in forest resources, is observing the decline of Northern Red Oak in southwestern Pennsylvania. His project focuses on how soil toxicity from acid rain affects the decline. He also is examining how tree regeneration is affected by limiting deer access to oak seeds and seedlings, and by adding agents to soil to offset acid rain deposits and improve soil chemistry.

"The stipend helps to support and enable students to pursue research," says Geraldine Russell, assistant director of the Pennsylvania Space Grant Consortium, which is based at Penn State. "The funds can be used to defray the cost of travel, child care or other needs."

NASA provides a total of $100,000 a year in support for the fellowship program, which began in 1989. Of 10 new grants being awarded this year, two were available to all University students meeting the criteria and the other eight were available to students in the four technical colleges — the Eberly College of Science, the College of Agriculture Sciences, the College of Engineering and the College of Earth and Mineral Sciences.

Chincoteague Ponies Unite For Drill Team

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Chincoteague ponies and Kendy Allen are synonomous. Long an admirer of the ponies made famous by a series of books written by Marguerite Henry, Kendy purchased Misty II, granddaughter of Misty of Chincoteague, in 1987.

The Allens, which includes husband Keith and daughters Kerra, 16, and Katye, 11, now own 14 descendants of the Misty of Chincoteague ponies. Under the Allen family's tutelage, the famous ponies have performed in numerous states and special events. To help with the growing herd of Chincoteagues, the Allens lease a few to horseless kids involved in 4-H.

Starting today, a Chincoteague Pony Drill Team will debut at the Elizabethtown Fair.

The idea for developing a drill team was birthed when Misty II and the Allen family was visiting the Kentucky Horse Park last summer.

Kendy said, "We watched some of the youth drill teams perform and they were so neat. I thought, why can't we do that? We're always getting invited to have the Chincoteagues appear at different places; and performing in a drill team adds a new perspective to showing people what Chincoteagues can do."

Kendy believes that the temperament of Chincoteague ponies is well suited to the structured riding event performed to music. Kendy and the riders, who range in age from 11-19, selected the soundtrack from the movie theme "Hoosier's."

Although Kendy admits to being partial to Chiconteague ponies, she said that the breed adapts quickly to being around other ponies, which makes them ideal for drill team participation since ponies maintain close contact with each other. The ponies are also intelligent and eager to please, she said.

Drill teams teach riders timing and control of the animals. Ponies that are accustomed to drill team maneuvers are more quiet and settled in other situations, according to Kendy.

Eight riders perform in synchronized pairs from a 17-page pattern that Kendy outlined and members practiced on foot until they memorized the pattern and were ready to mount the ponies.

Drill team requires experienced riders. Each team member has had at least five years of riding experience. Some, such as Kendy's daughter Katye have ridden since three years of age.

Another daughter, Kerra, said that communicating while performing in drill team is a must.

"Each kid must focus. We must all put forth the same amount of effort. No team member is more important than another."

Forgetting parts or becoming disoriented during the drill can result in jammed knees in addition to interrupting the smooth flowing show.

"If one person makes a mistake, we cover for each other by pretending we know what we are doing and go on from there," Kerra said.

While the drill team practices, a group of children sit on the fence yelling and clapping. According to Kendy the antics of this group is helping the ponies become accustom to noise that they will hear when performing at large events. This trains the ponies to concentrate on their job and to ignore the noise of the crowd.

The riders insist that they can tell when the ponies' favorite parts of the drill are about to begin.

According to Pennie Peterson, 20, who is captain of the drill team, "The ponies like the fast parts."

Pennie, who is a citizen of both Denmark and Canada, has been riding for 14 years, and has worked in North Carolina stables. As captain, she calls out the changing gaits during the practice sessions. Pennie said that in an actual show, verbal commands will not be given. Istead, she will signal teammates by nodding her head when ready to cross patterns.

"It's important to pay constant attention to your partner," Pennie said.

The Allens breed, raise, train, and occasionally sell one of their quality Chincoteague ponies. Their farm is the only place known in the United States where "Misty Family" ponies can be purchased ready to ride and show.

All their ponies are registered with the Chincoteague Pony Association in Chincoteague, Va.

Each year, a round-up and an auction of the wild ponies on the island of Chinconteague is held. The ponies sell from $1,000-$6,000 each.

Ten years ago, the Allens purchased Misty II, who was then 13 years old and had remained unbroken on the Chicoteague island. Misty II it the only pony in the entire Misty line since the original Misty to show the markings of "map of the United States." The Allens gentled her to saddle, ride, stand on a stool, and shake hands.

Misty loves carrot oat cakes, but her favorite food is fruit-flavored Life Savers.

Misty II traveled to Chincoteague in July to participate in the Pony Penning where she and other Misty family relatives performed.

"We think Chincoteague ponies are one of the best kept secrets in the horse world," Kendy said. She hopes the drill team performance will show the beauty and the intelligence of the ponies.

In addition to the Allen children, team members include Adrienne Zimmerman, Lititz; Pennie Petersen, Lititz; Sarah Shimko, Manheim, Lyndsy and Beth Hol-

(Turn to Page B5)

Kendy Allen, right, instructs the Chincoteague ponies to stand on a stool for introduction to the crowd.

These kids attend practice to yell, shout, and clap to help the ponies become accustomed to noises they will hear from the crowd during actual performances.

Picking Flowers For The Fair

Are you planning to exhibit annual or perennial flowers at your local community fair? Award-winning entries must be fresh. Pick the flowers on the same day just prior to the fair. Handle them with care.

Flowers will wilt less when picked in the morning. Flowers picked in the heat of the day, may partially wilt. Why? When stems are cut, air may enter their water-conducting vessles, blocking further water uptake.

Select only quality blooms for a flower arrangement. Cut the flower stalks with a sharp pruner or knife, at a slant, near the bottom of the stem. Avoid using a scissors, which tend to crush the stems.

Immerse fresh cut stems and blooms in a bucket of tepid water before carrying them back to your house. Keep the water deep enough to come just below the flower heads. Use separate pails for separate varieties, or wrap each group in newspaper before placing in the bucket.

Recut stems of soft-stemmed blooms underwater, removing about one-half to one inch of the stem. For woody stems, crush the bottom inch of the stem. Submerged leaves will decay rapidly; so, be sure to remove all foliage that will be below the water line.

Prior to arranging your flowers, check your fair premium book. It defines the number of blooms allowed per arrangement and the classes you can enter with each flower type. If the rules say six to eight blooms per entry, don't stick in 10 to 12 or your entry will be disqualified.

Prior to arranging flowers in a vase, wash each vase in hot, soapy water. Rinse thoroughly with tap water. Fill each vase with warm fresh water.

Precondition the cut flowers by adding floral preservative to the water. Without the preservative, bacteria multiply, clogging stem ends and causing flowers to wilt. Place the stems in the vase and when the arrangement is complete move to a cool, draft-free area. Leave the arrangement there until the water cools to room temperature.

To transport your floral entries to the fair, dump some of the water out of each vase into a larger container. Bring this water with you to top off the vase when you arrive at the fair.

Pack arrangements upright in a sturdy cardboard box, using wadded newspaper to keep them separate. Take extra blooms in case stems get broken or crushed during travel.

Arrive at the fair before the advertised deadline for entering. Be sure to fill out all entry cards completely. Then, sit back and wait for the judges to announce you as the winner.

ton, Mount Joy; and Erika Bender, Manheim.

Although team members did not have their uniforms for practice, the team will wear black hats with black short sleeved mock turtleneck shirts, and grey britches when performing at events.

Team members have lofty plans for the drill team. "We want to perform at the Olympics to show people what ponies can do. We need sponsors," Pennie said.

While the Allens' farm is not open to the public as a tourist attraction, they enjoy meeting Chincoteague enthusiasts all over the U.S. For bookings, or if you would like to visit the Allens' Chincoteague ponies, write to 546 Oak Tree Rd., Manheim, PA 17545, or call (717) 665-7144.

Savor The Flavor Of Vine-Ripened Tomatoes

Pennsylvania ranks fifth nationally in production of processing tomatoes and ninth in the production of fresh market tomatoes. The state's fresh market tomato crop is grown on more than 4,000 acres. Another 1,400 acres are used to grow tomatoes for food processors for use in several brands of tomato products. In addition, about 40 acres of greenhouses produce tomatoes during the spring and fall months when they cannot be grow in in the field.

Without question, a tomato ripened to a red color on the vine will have a superior taste.

If tomatoes are picked before they are fully ripe, they can develop an appetizing flavor and texture if two basic conditions are met. First, the tomatoes must not be refrigerated. They should be kept at room temperature or at least above 55 degrees.

Never refrigerate tomatoes until they are red and fully ripened.

Here are some ideas for making good use of flavorful tomatoes.

HARVEST MINESTRONE WITH POTATO DUMPLINGS

1 small onion, diced
1 rib celery, diced
2 cloves garlic, chopped
6 cups canned vegatable broth
1 large carrot, diced
½ cup green beans, cut into ½-inch pieces

2 large tomatoes, peeled, seeded, and chopped
1 small yellow summer squash, diced
1 small zucchini, diced
½ cup cooked kidney beans

Dumplings:

2 large potatoes, peeled, boiled, hot (about 2 cups)
½ cup unbleached white flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons fresh dill, chopped
2 egg whites

In large pot over medium heat, cook onion, celery, and garlic in ¼ cup stock until vegetables are wilted about 4 minutes. Add carrots, green beans, and corn, cooked 5 minutes, covered.

Add remaining stock, tomatoes, squash, zucchini, and kidney beans. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer, partially covered for 10 minutes. Now you'ready to make dumplings:

Pass potatoes through ricer into a large bowl, or lightly mash with a fork. Sift flour and baking powder over potatoes, add salt and dill, and mix together gently. Mixture will be crumbly.

Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Mix into potato mixture, folding and stirring. Don't overmix.

Drop heaping tablespoonfuls of dumpling dough onto gently simmering soup. Cook for 10 minutes with the lid off; then cover and cook 10 minutes more. Makes 6 servings.

Living On A Reduced Income
Keeping A Roof Overhead

Keeping a roof overhead is an important concern when you lose your income. If you rank your bills in order of priority, chances are housing is at or near the top of the list.

When you're under the financial distress of reduced or lost income, one of the biggest expenses is housing. Housing expenses included mortgage or rent payments, insurance, taxes, household maintenance and repair, utility bills, furnishings, and cleaning supplies.

When your income drops, careful planning can help you avoid eviction from your rental unit or the loss of your house.

Rent Payments

If you rent, tell your landlord about your situation before rent is due. Ask for a temporary postponement until your income resumes. Offer to provide some service, such as painting in exchange for rent. Suggest making smaller payments for a month or two, with the understanding that you will catch up when your income increases again. Often it costs money for a landlord to change tenants so they may be willing to work with you.

There are steps that a landlord can take when you don't pay your rent according to your lease arrangement, so contact him/her immediately.

If you think your loss of income will continue for more than a few months, you may have to consider moving to lower cost rental housing.

Mortgage Payments

With reduced or lost income, you quickly feel the stress of a sizable mortgage payment.

If your loss of income will only be a few months, you may be able to cut back on other expenses to meet your mortgage payments.

Important: If you miss a mortgage payment, you have defaulted on your contract and your lender can begin foreclosure on your home.

If meeting your mortgage payment appears impossible, contact your lender immediately.

You may be able to skip a payment or arrange a lower payment. Take along a new spending plan that fits your reduced income.

Most lenders would rather avoid the time and cost involved in a foreclosure if another alternative can be worked out.

If your loss of income is going to last a long time or is permanent, you will need to consider other options. You don't have to live under the extreme stress and strain of meeting mortgage payments that are too high. Here are some options:

•Taking in a roomer or renter and use the money toward mortgage payments.

•Renting the present house to someone else and renting less costly housing for yourself.

•Selling the present house and buying or renting less costly housing.

•Moving in with relatives or friends. Offer to share some of the housing costs.

•Deeding the house back to the lender. You may not lose much. For example, if you've been paying on a mortgage for 10 years, you have not paid for much of the home yet — only about 10 percent. If by staying in this house you won't have enough money for food or other necessities, you may find it less stressful to leave the house and find less expensive housing.

Insurance Payments

Homeowner or renter's insurance protects you in case of loss or damage to property. During times of reduced income, it's important to have property insurance.

If you can't make an insurance payment, call or write your agent or the company. There may be some leeway (10-30 days) in premium payment due dates.

Real Estate Taxes

If you are unable to pay taxes, contact your local county treasurer to learn about procedures used when property taxes are delinquent. Interest accumulates on unpaid taxes.

ANSWER — Barbara Fair, Mohrsville, wanted a recipe for corn cob jelly. Thanks to Harriet Brown, Mifflintown; Tara Smith, Felton; Marlene Martin, Ephrata, and others for sending recipes.

Corn Cob Jelly

12 bright red corn cobs
3 pints water
1 package Sure Jell
3 cups granulated sugar

Boil broken corn cobs in water for 30 minutes. Remove from heat and strain liquid, if not 3 cups, add enough water to make 3 cups. Add Sure-jell and bring to rolling boil. Add sugar and boil 2-3 minutes or until jelly-stage. Do not add coloring or flavoring, as it has its own. Tastes a lot like apple jelly.

Corn Cob Jelly

12 large corncobs
4 cups water
1 box powdered fruit pectin
4 cups sugar
Yellow food coloring

Cut corn kernels from cobs and reserve for another recipe. In a large kettle, place corn cobs and water, bring to a boil. Boil for 10 minutes. Remove and discard cobs; strain liquid through a cheesecloth. Liquid should measure three cups. Add additional water if necessary. Return to kettle and add pectin. Bring to a full rolling boil. Add sugar and bring back to boil. Skim foam and add a few drops food coloring. Pour into hot jars. Cool and refrigerate until ready to use. Yield: about 4 pints.

ANSWER — About two years ago, a reader wanted to know where to purchase flake hominy. Numerous wrote to say it was no longer being made. However, Louise Graybeal of Renick, W.V., has finally located it. For those who are interested, write to the following address: The Golden Kernel, Rt. 1, Box 93, Grottoes, VA. Or, call 1-800-231-4813, Mon.-Sat. 10 a.m.-6. p.m.

Louise also included her mother's recipe, which she writes, is just as good as she remembers it.

Mother's Golden Browned Flaked Hominy

4 cups water
1½ cups flaked hominy
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten
1 tablespoon sugar
Black pepper to taste

Bring water to a boil, adding ½ teaspoon salt. Gradually pour into water 1½ cups flaked hominy, lifting with a fork until all flakes are dampened.

Reduce heat and cook covered until all water is absorbed. Lift flakes occasionally to keep from sticking (10-15 minutes).

Add beaten eggs, pepper, and sugar. Mix altogether while hominy is still hot.

Heat 2 tablespoons butter in an iron skillet and drop rounded tablespoons of hominy into buttered pan. Fry on both sides until golden brown.

ANSWER — Mrs. Kenneth Swinehart wanted a recipe for her commercial soft ice cream maker. Thanks to a reader for sending the following recipe, which is different than a previously printed recipe.

Soft Serve Ice Cream Mix
4-quart freezer

6 cups milk
2½ tablespoons unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
2 cups granulated sugar
2 tablespoons vanilla
½ tablespoon salt
5 large eggs
2 cups heavy cream
Fruit of flavoring

Scald the milk but do not let it boil. Dissolve the gelatin in the cold water. Combine the sugar, vanilla, salt, and eggs. Add the milk and the gelatin mixture to the egg mixture. Chill for one hour, then add the cream. At this point, you can store the mix to use later. It will keep up to 7-8 days as long as the milk and cream were very fresh. Store in a non-metal container with a tight fitting lid in the coldest part of the refrigerator. When ready to use, freeze according to freezer manufacturing directions. For a 3-gallon mix, multiply the recipe by three when mixing it. (For a 6-quart freezer, multiply by 1½.

Tomatoes

TOMATO SALAD

1-2 medium ripe tomatoes, chopped
1 tablespoon fresh rosemary
1 teaspoon fresh basil
¼ cup chopped onion, white, vidalia, or red
2 tablespoons vinegar (basil vinegar works well)
1 tablespoons olive oil
Salt and pepper to taste
Pinch sugar
Mozzarella cheese

Mix rosemary, basil, olive oil, sugar, and vinegar. Add tomatoes and onions. Refrigerate at least 30 minutes. Add cheese just before serving.

This makes a wonderful topping for mini pizzas. We bake the pizza shell for a few minutes. Add the tomato mixture, cook a few more minutes. Top with cheese and heat until the cheese melts.

This also works well if you have an abundance of "sweet 100" cherry tomatoes, sliced in half.

MY FAVORITE TOMATO QUICHE

Pie crust
3 medium or large tomatoes, peeled, seeded, chopped
1 medium sweet onion, chopped
3 tablespoon butter
¾ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon basil
½ teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon garlic
½ teaspoon parsley
½ pound Swiss cheese, diced
3 eggs, beaten
1 cup half and half (I use a fat-free brand)

Bake pie crust in a quiche pan 10 minutes at 400 degrees. In a saucepan, combine tomatoes and the next seven ingredients until the ingredients are reduced by half.* Mix eggs and cream together. Sprinkle cheese over bottom of pie curst. Pour tomato sauce over cheese. Pour cream mixture over tomato sauce. Bake 10 minutes at 425 degrees. Reduce heat to 375 degrees and continue baking for 35 minutes or until set. Cool 10 minutes before cutting.

* For the summer, I make the tomato portion of this recipe when tomatoes are plentiful. I freeze it in portions and use it to make my quiches all year long.

Lincoln University

FRESH TOMATO, BASIL SOUP

1 tablespoon butter
1 large clove garlic, finely chopped
1 medium carrot, diced
1 medium onion, chopped
4 cups chicken stock
3 cups diced ripe tomatoes
3 tablespoons chopped fresh basil leaves
Salt and freshly ground pepper

In heavy saucepan, melt butter; stir in garlic, carrot, and onion. Cook over medium-low heat until onion is tender. Add stock; cover and simmer 20 minutes. Stir in tomatoes and simmer for 10 minutes. Just before serving, stir in basil and salt and pepper to taste. Makes 6 servings (about 1 cup each).

This light, flavorful soup is perfect for a first course during tomato season. If fresh basil is not available, use fresh dill; you'll probably want to a add more dill than the basil called for here.

Calories per serving: 76; grams fat 2.9; vitamins A and C: excellent; niacin: good.

Consuming Thoughts

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

Illness caused by contaminated food is usually avoidable. How you handle and store food is a major factor in causing or preventing food poisoning especially perishable foods that you store in the refrigerator or freezer.

If you follow some simple guidelines for food storage, you can help prevent food poisoning.

It is very important that you prevent any contact between uncooked meat and poultry and other foods. Overwrap the meat package in plastic or aluminum foil before placing it in the refrigerator. Place the overwrapped package on a dish to keep the juices from dripping onto other foods.

If fresh produce touches raw meat, or the juices from raw meat or poultry. DO NOT EAT IT! This rule also applies to any other food that will be eaten without cooking. Food contamination commonly occurs when raw meat juices get onto ingredients used in a fresh salad.

If raw meat juices drip onto a refrigerator shelf, clean the shelf immediately. This will prevent contamination of the foods. Remember to wash your hands with soap and water before AND after wrapping food items with damaged packages. If you clean the inside of your refrigerator regularly, this will also help improve food safety. Always read food labels and refrigerate items marked "refrigerate after opening" or "keep refrigerated." Check the expiration date on refrigerated foods, and don't eat the food after the "use by" date has passed.

Remember that you should store foods in the refrigerator only temporarily. You can mark the purchase date on the package before refrigerating it to help you remember this. If you cannot remember when a food was placed in the refrigerator, throw it out. Never eat foods that might have been in the refrigerator too long.

The temperature inside your refrigerator should always be 40°F or colder. To make sure of this, you can use a refrigerator thermometer. An inexpensive thermometer is cheap insurance against food poisoning.

If your power goes oout or your refrigerator stops working, keep the door closed. If the problem continues for more than a couple of hours you should cook any raw meat or poultry right away. If you need advice on food safety in your particular situation, call the toll-free Meat and Poultry Hotline at (800) 535-4555 or your county Cooperative Extension office.

A freezer can extend the safe storage time for most foods, but proper handling is still important. Place only fresh or freshly cooked items in the freezer, because freezing doesn't make unsafe food safe again. Frozen items don't spoil as quickly as those in the refrigerator, but they will lose quality and flavor when they are stored too long. It is helpful to overwrap food packages in freezer wrap, freezer-quality plastic bags, or aluminum foil before placing them in the freezer.

Always place items labeled "keep frozen" in the freezer as soon as you get home from the supermarket. In hot weather, you may want to place these items in a cooler for the trip home. If frozen foods thaw and remain warm for an hour or more during the trip home, DO NOT refreeze them. It is safer to discard these thawed foods.

Always keep the freezer door closed when power outage or other freezer failure occurs. If the problems last more than 24 hours, transfer the food to another freezer. Any food that can't be frozen should be thrown out or eaten right away. Meat and poultry that have not thawed completely can be refrozen, as long as ice crystals are still present. Partly thawed fruits and vegetables will lose their texture and become mush if they are refrozen.

Following these handling and storage practices can greatly reduce your chances of food poisoning. Remember: if you have any doubt about the freshness or safety of a food time, throw it out. The cost of a single item of food cannot compare with the risk of endangering the health of your family.

Powerpay Analysis Helps Reduce Debt Payment

RUTGERS, N.J. — Are you experiencing difficulty paying credit card bills? Do you want to reduce the amount of time and money required to repay existing debts? Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Gloucester County has a computer program called "PowerPay" that will calculate the fastest way to repay your creditors while paying the least amount of interest.

The principle behind PowerPay is that, as one debt is repaid, the monthly payment from that previous debt is applied to remaining creditors until all debts are repaid. Depending on the number of creditors owed and outstanding balances, the amount of money saved by following the PowerPay program can range from several hundred dollars to well over $10,000.

With the PowerPay program, the total amount spent monthly on debt repayment remains the same. Calculations can also be done of "scenarios" with optional additional monthly payments (e.g., $25). Persons requesting a PowerPay analysis receive a calendar indication the amount that should be paid to each creditor until all debts are eliminated. Up to 30 separate debts can be analyzed by PowerPay.

To obtain a PowerPay analysis, contact Rutgers Cooperative Extension for a PowerPay enrollment kit. Included is a worksheet with spaces to provide information about the name of creditors, the monthly payment, the interest rate, and the outstanding balance. The cost of a PowerPay analysis is $2.50.

To obtain a PowerPay worksheet, send a check, made payable to the "Home Economics Council" to Rutgers Cooperative Extension, Gloucester County Office Bldg., 1200 N. Delsea Drive, Clayton, NJ 08312. For additional information about PowerPay and other Rutgers Cooperative Extension programs and services, call (609) 863-0130 weekdays during business hours.

Maryland To Hold Farm Queen Coronation

TIMONIUM, Md. — This weekend, 22 young women from across the state will vie for the title of 1997 Maryland Farm Queen at the Maryland State Fair in Timonium.

The competition on August 23 and 24, which includes formal and informal interviews, will culminate in a public contest at 7 p.m. Sunday in the fairground Cow Palace.

At this time, the young women — each selected in a county contest earlier this year — will be asked to give a one-minute speech and answer a "fish bowl" question concerning their knowledge of agriculture and Maryland Farm Bureau policies. Each young woman is also judged on her poise, ability to speak, and her community involvement.

For more information about the contest, contact the Maryland Farm Bureau at (410) 922-3426.

York 4-H Fair Celebrates 20-Year History

"Jenny" the gentle donkey and her two-month-old jack "Eeyore" got lots of attention at the York 4-H Fair's pet parade for Raymond Stough, Jr. Jenny is a veteran of numerous community Palm Sunday parades. Her baby already shows the marking of a cross on its tiny shoulders, classic identification of a Sicilian donkey, the type which legend says carried Christ into Jerusalem.

Keeping one eye on judge Jesse Romberger at all times, rabbitry competitors switch, handle, and evaluate one another's entires in the senior showmanship runoffs. From left are rabbit exhibitors Lillian Eddinger, Rijelle Kraft and Lucas Kraft. Rijelle Kraft won the championship.

BAIR (York Co.) — From baking to baby-sitting to beef, the York County 4-H Fair had a little something for everyone.

Visitors could ooh and aah over the pet parade, enjoy a tug of war or rocketry demonstration, learn how rabbits and beef are judged, enjoy tasty barbecue sandwiches, even compete in a contest to match up 4-H staffers and adult volunteers to their baby pictures.

A highlight of many of the county's annual club programs, the August 6 and 7 fair has blossomed in 20 years from a roundup of projects at the fairgrounds to a two-day expo, with fun and educational events and a fund-raiser at the expanded 4-H Center near Bair.

Hundreds of project displays took center stage in the Center's main exhibition hall, culmination of dozens of learning efforts by both rural and urban youth around the county. Judges evaluated and awarded ribbons to participants, with the project displays then open for public inspection.

Projects ranged from insect collection to leathercraft, from tinpunch to candlemaking, from baby-sitting to ceramics. Traditional cooking and sewing, mainstays of the historic beginnings of the rural 4-H program, are still popular as evidenced by displays of handmade garments and a variety of foods projects. Gardening and animal projects likewise are still in demand among 4-H participants.

Sepcial events of the annual youth project fair included the 4-H Olympics, goat, rabbit and cavy, beef and lamb shows, fashion and talent shows, and demonstrations by the poultry and seeing-eye pup-

Trini Gore's 200-plus Silky chickens she raised for 4-H this year inspired her project poster on "What Do Chickens Do?" The 4-H poultry growers with all-dark-meat birds, like Silkies, pool their project birds when mature for niche-market sales to the oriental food trade.

Why do dogs pant so much?
Because Fido can't sweat like you do.
When the temperature rises during the hot, dog days of summer, you cool off by perspiring. As the salty liquid dries, it cools your skin and lowers your temperature.
Dogs aren't so lucky. But, the problem isn't their heavy furs coats. Dogs have just a few sweat glands in their paws, so no matter how much they sweat, they never cool off. That's where the tongue-hanging, mouth-open puppy breathing comes in.
The major blood vessel in a dog's head runs very close to the surface of its nose. The fresh air a dog breathes works like a fan to cool the blood in the snout, which then circulates to cool the rest of the pup. (Fido exhales the warm air out its mouth.)
While this set up works well in fresh air, a dog can get really sick if the air is too warm — like inside a car with the windows rolled up on a sunny day. And, dogs that run and play in hot, humid weather can overheat, too — though probably not as bad as a dog locked in a car.
Panting helps a dog get the much needed air to its nose more quickly. But normally, just a wet doggy nose is enough to keep its system cool.
Scientifically yours, Twig

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

Our week in the mountains, with our extended family, was both restful and stressful.

As we approached the door to unlock the hunting cabin, we discovered that a woodpile had slid and blocked the door. So Allen and I tossed it aside until some younger members piled it properly.

The cabin is large and a few times during the week we made meals for 20 people. One day was spent traveling to Penn's Cave. Here we boarded a large boat to go through the historic landmark. This all-water cavern has been open to the public since 1885. It was discovered by the Seneca Indians centuries ago.

One member of our party had to be taken by ambulance to the Lewistown Hospital for an overnight stay. It is a wonder that they found us — secluded as we were. This was an unexpected occurrence but after some pressure from our daughter, a nurse practitioner, they discharged the patient the next day.

We thought this was the end of our excitement. But no, that night a youngster fell out of an upper bunk in a sleeping bag. Then in the middle of the night an adult fell out of an upper bunk. Oh dear, what a time we had.

On two separate occasions, we drove through mountains and more mountains to Bald Eagle State Park to fish and boat. The grandchildren were thrilled to catch small fish which I cleaned in the evening. They also enjoyed the boat rides and the nice swimming area.

It was a week of comings and goings as some members of the family had jobs to attend to. Others had appointments in Washington, D.C. or parties to go to. It was a week of common concerns and lots of hugs until we all get together again.

Bidding Light At Bedford Baked Goods Auction

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Bidders were more plentiful than the baked goods as the annual 4-H baked goods auction got under way at the Bedford County Fair.

Highest bid item was a $37.50 ladybug-shaped cake which had a "best of show" ribbon.

Volunteer auctioneers, Stanley Claycomb and Linda Muir, got top dollars for all of the items including a plate of fudge which went for $18; a plate of Hershey chocolate cookies, $25; a $28 first place apple pie; and a $26 prize winning chocolate cake.

Cookies which totaled less than a half-dozen brought as much as $6.

Grand total was $940, slightly less than last year. While there were more bidders and bidding was higher, there were fewer baked items.

Ginder Finds Niche In Helping Farmers Manage

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — After 18 years of working in agricultural lending with several financial institutions, E. Dennis Ginder was ready for a career change.

With roots in farming, a bachelor's degree in agricultural mechanization, and a graduate degree in banking, Ginder wanted a job that would tie together agriculture and helping people learn.

He thinks that he has found the perfect combination as the new farm management agent serving Chester and Lancaster counties.

In that position, Ginder meets one to one with people to help them become good business managers. That encompasses a wide area — everything from helping determine feasibility of expansion to estate planning.

Much of his banking experience will apply in his new role, but one significant difference came with the job change.

"In this position, I am not selling anything. In my banking position, I was essentially selling money," he said.

E. Dennis Ginder is the newly-appointed Penn State Cooperative Extension farm management agent serving Chester and Lancaster counties.

Just like he did as a bank lender, Ginder may help a farmer do a financial analysis of his operation to determine the feasibility of expansion, but the service is only to help farmers see all the angles so that they can best determine the right course of action. Ginder will not make the ultimate decision on whether or not expansion is a viable option.

In some cases, Ginder offers perspective on labor issues or works out lease agreements between landlord and tenant. He is careful to work through issues so that disagreements can be viewed from both perspectives.

In the end, Ginder tells clients, "It is not my money nor decision. You must decide what's good for you and your family."

Ginder believes that good business managers seek out all the information they can before making major decisions. Many farmers do not know where to turn or how to gather the information.

In his position, Ginder has access to many resources and is eager to share the information. Although he will not recommend one particular person, he will provide a listing of professionals such as attorneys or accountants who are familiar with agricultural issues.

Ginder grew up on a Manheim livestock and tobacco farm. He recalls showing the grand champion hog at the Lancaster Stockyards about 30 years ago.

Although he considered returning to the family farm, a major expansion would have been required to support two families.

"I decided not to encourage my parents to take on additional debt," said Ginder, who worked for Farm Credit, Meridian Bank, and in recent years as manager of the ag lending group for CoreStates Bank.

Ginder, his wife Jan, and daughter Kalah, 15 months, live in Lebanon, but would like to move to a more centrally located position to cover the Lancaster and Lebanon counties.

In his position with the Penn State Cooperative Extension, Ginder responds to those who request help. Some referrals are also received from banks or from other extension agents. There is no charge for his services.

Back-To-School Tips For Parents

For parents and children alike, heading back to school after a relaxed and carefree summer can be a harsh reality. While exciting and challenging, the start of a new school year can also bring with it a period of potential stress and anxiety for all family members. There is school shopping to be done, new parent-teacher relationships to establish, before and after-school schedules to coordinate, homework to be completed, and time to be managed. With all of the changes that are sure to occur, here are some ways that parents can help themselves and their children prepare for the year.

•Shopping for school items for your child? If so, plan ahead. Before shopping, make a list of what you need. This will help you from buying extras that you don't really need and will help keep you within your budget. Consider investing in time-saving school supplies such as a good set of reference books or a large tupperware box filled with needed paper supplies, costumes, and other "last minute" items. When purchasing clothes, consider those that comfortable, durable and large enough in size to last a while. After you and your child pick up the items you need, do something for pleasure — visit a bookstore, enjoy an ice cream cone or play in the park.

•Don't wait until parent-teacher conference time to meet your child's teacher. Plan to meet at the start of the school year while the slate is clean and there is more time to talk. Inform the teacher about any important details that will help him or her better understand your child. When you meet the teacher, express general support and offer your help if problems arise. Plan to participate in school activities and continue to maintain positive communication throughout the school year.

•Help your child stay organized by posting a big calendar in the kicthen or other prominent area. Dates to include on the calendar include birthdays, school holidays, doctor's appointments, sports practices and tournaments, church functions and important homework due dates. While individual schedules may be busy, make sure to include "family time" activities on your calendar as well!

•Worried about getting your child to do homework? Show him that you have homework too. Set a firm homework hour and sit with your child at the kitchen table or wherever he works. While he does his assignments, you can pay bills, catch up with letters, read work materials or just read a good book. When the time is up, put the homework away and enjoy spending leisure time with your child.

•Practice time-saving routines throughout the week. When possible, pack lunches the night before school so that mornings aren't so hectic. Encourage your child to lay out clothes he will be wearing the night before school. Designate special places for kids shoes, notebooks, sports equipment and other potential house clutterers. Encourage a "team effort" approach to home management. Establish a list of household chores to be done, teach children who to prepare their own snacks and any other chores that will help teach them responsibility while saving you time.

•Finally, recognize that the start of a new school year almost always marks a period of adjustment for both parent and child.

Lancaster 4-H Assistants Toil, Learn And Earn

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Energy, laughter, and accomplishment abound at the Farm and Home Center, headquarters for four summer assistants and full-time 4-H assistant Lori Little at the Lancaster Penn State Extension office.

"We have an excellent core. We could not ask for better assistants," said Dr. John Schwartz, director of Lancaster Extension.

Summer assistants fill multi-purposes. The growing season coupled with many 4-H events brings an extra heavy load to extension personnel. Summer assistants help with the extra duties and allow extension agents to do a better job for people in the county. It's also a way of giving county students an opportunity to see what a career in extension would be like.

Of prime importance is Lori Little, full-time 4-H assistant whose job extends beyond the summer months.

She was hired in January of this year. Since the appointment of Dr. Zoann Parker, former 4-H extension agent, to state agriculture deputy secretary, Lori has assumed many of Parker's previous duties.

Duties include heading the embryology school program, working with horse, livestock and dairy programs, organizing the 4-H fair, fundraising, honor roll scholarships, and achievement night.

"The staff and the summer assistants are incredible in helping with everything," Lori said of the work overload.

She considers her duties similar to that of teacher, for which she received certification through Delaware Valley College, where she majored in ag education. Lori took a heavy class load to graduate in 3½ years.

Because Lori grew up showing horses when she was eight years old through 4-H Broken Bits and Boots and Saddles clubs, and competed in horse judging and hippology contests, she was familiar with the 4-H program. As an FFA student at Manheim Central High School, Lori also showed sheep and steers.

Summer assistant Kandi Mullen played a vital role in overseeing general 4-H program activities and events. After 10 years as a 4-H'er involved in sewing, foods, public speaking, strawberry club, archery team (went to state competition), and dairy club, Kandi wasn't ready to leave the 4-H program. When a job opened up last summer to work as an 4-H assistant, Kandi eagerly took advantage of the opportunity. She liked it so well that she returned this year between college terms.

She said, "Four-H did a lot for me. I learned leadership and communication skills — stuff that I haven't even picked up in college although I'll be starting my junior year. Even though it (summer assistant) is a paid position, you can return a lot to the program."

At Lock Haven University, Kandi is studying to be teacher. She would like to teach American history to 10th or 11th graders, but said, "Just to be in a classroom would make me happy."

She taught a two-week class in Philadelphia this past spring, which clinched her decision to work with inner-city kids.

Since Kandi lives in rural area of Peach Bottom, people are sometimes surprised by her choice, but Kandi said, "I like to do things out of the ordinary. I like the change. Although many people view inner-city kids as different from us, they aren't."

In coordinating 4-H activities, Kandi said that the best part was to actually go out and work with kids in both leadership and chaperone roles.

"Sometimes it was frustrating not to be able to do things without approval, which is required on a number of levels. As a 4-H'er, I didn't need to deal with that. But the supervisors and everyone I worked with were wonderful. I enjoyed everything that I got to do."

Eric Houston worked with the urban 4-H program and assisted Nancy Wiker, extension agent. Unlike the other assistants, Eric had not been involved in the 4-H program growing up.

"Four-H is fantastic program. It gets a lot of kids involved in activities that benefit their future. Especially for inner city children, 4-H gives a window into a world that they don't know about.

Eric said, "I learned about farming and things I never knew before. All around me, people were working with livestock and stuff.

In his job working with kids, Eric made up projects, games, taught food and plant activities.

"I taught them to say soil not dirt when we were planting. That's one thing I learned while giving lessons. I made sure that whatever I did with the kids was fun. 4-H is not school."

A sophomore at Penn State University Park, Eric is a political science major and plans to attend law school. A Warwick High School graduate, Eric now plays on Penn State's men's varsity volleyball team and had helped with the democratic campaign in fall. When he isn't in college, Eric lives with Mike and Kathy Keeney of Lititz.

"Eric is an excellent role model. He relates well with kids and does a super job," Schwartz said.

Wendall Landis, son of Abe and Dottie Landis of Manheim, worked as the livestock summer assistant with extension agent Chet Hughes.

As a 4-H member for eight years, Wendall had showed sheep and hogs and was also part of both the champion state livestock team and the meats judging team.

This summer, he had a taste of what it's like from the other side. He worked with the livestock and meat judging programs. He attended 4-H State Days as a chaperone.

One of his main responsibilities was to visit each member in beef, sheep, and swine club. He checked record books, took a survey, answered questions, and gave individual help to members.

This was a big responsibility since the hog club has 101 members; the sheep club has 93 members, and the beef club has 25 members.

"It was really interesting to see different ideas at farms and get to know the kids better," he said.

"I got to see the stuff I always did from the other side. And, I saw more of what goes on behind the scenes like getting ready for the 4-H Fair," Wendall said.

Wendall is studying animal science at Penn State where he is halfway through his junior year. He took off last fall to follow the harvest in the west.

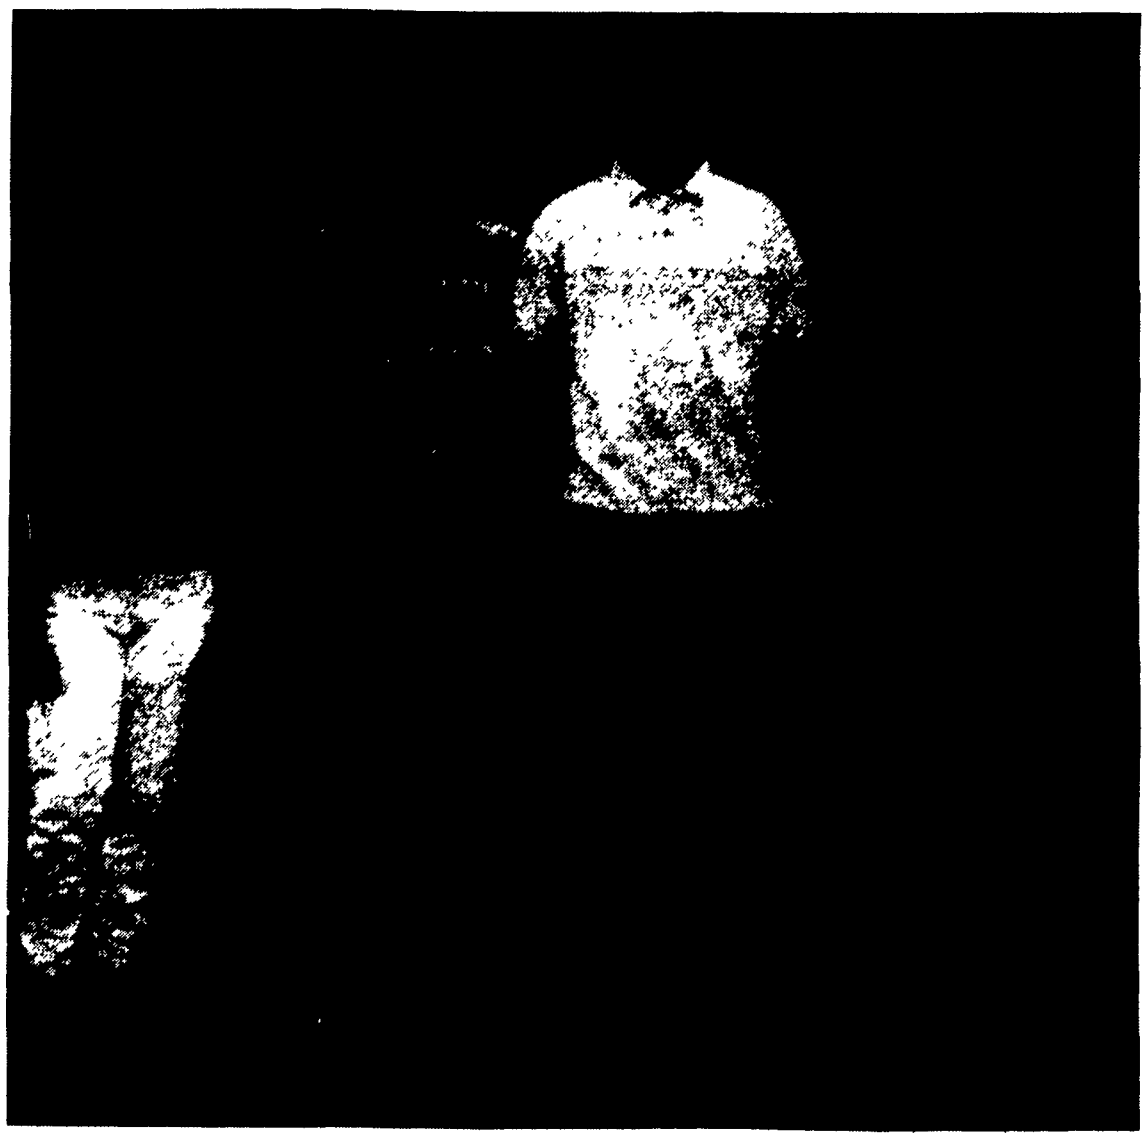
"Although I never showed cattle in 4-H, now I am most interested in cattle. Next year, I'd like to work on an Angus ranch in the West. Eventually he'd like to work for extension and live in the West and raise cattle and crops.

Ross Wiker worked with intergrated pest management and horticulture programs giving technical assistance to Dr. Timothy Elkner. He found his work fascinating. He especially liked the variety of outdoor work combined with working in a professional office, where he entered information derived from the studies into the computer. Wiker helped set up a series of insect traps, monitored, and reported insect counts for the produce auctions and the university. This information provides a great educational tool for farmers in county, according to Schwartz.

A sophomore at Penn State Berks Campus in ag business management, Ross is the son of the family and consumer sciences extension agent Nancy Wiker and her husband Robert of Lititz.

He applied for the position because he was looking for a job that would give him more insight into the agriculture world. He was not disappointed. Dinners at the Wiker household often includes scientific information on corn varieties and how pesticides affect plants and weeds.

After returning from a 4-H event, Lori Little, center, Eric Houston, right, and Wendall Landis unload supplies.



After a stint as summer 4-H assistants Kandi Mullen, Wendall Landis, Eric Houston, and Ross Wiker spread enthusiasm about the 4-H program.

How To Decipher Clothing Care Labels

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The next time you do clothes shopping, you might see care labels using pictorial symbols instead of the written word.

As of July 1, clothing made in North America that's sold in Canada or Mexico in addition to the United States must have care labels in English, French and Spanish or use symbols developed by the American Society of Testing and Materials. The care symbols are similar to those used internationally, but are more comprehensive and include the Fahrenheit scale for wash-water temperatures.

"For the first 18 months, hang tags will indicate what the symbols mean," said Joyce Smith, clothing specialist for Ohio State University Extension. After that, consumers will be on their own.

"Initially, consumers may find the new care label system a little confusing," Smith said. "But the system is logical once you understand the basic symbols."

The symbols are composed of five basic geometric shapes, marked with various lines and dots to indicate care instructions. For example, dots inside the symbols for washing and drying indicate temperature — the more dots, the higher the temperature. Horizontal lines underneath those symbols indicate that more gentle treatment is needed for the garment.

"Think of the lines as a 'minus' sign," Smith said. "The more lines, the gentler the treatment."

At first glance the symbols can look complicated, but there's rhyme and reason behind them. For example:

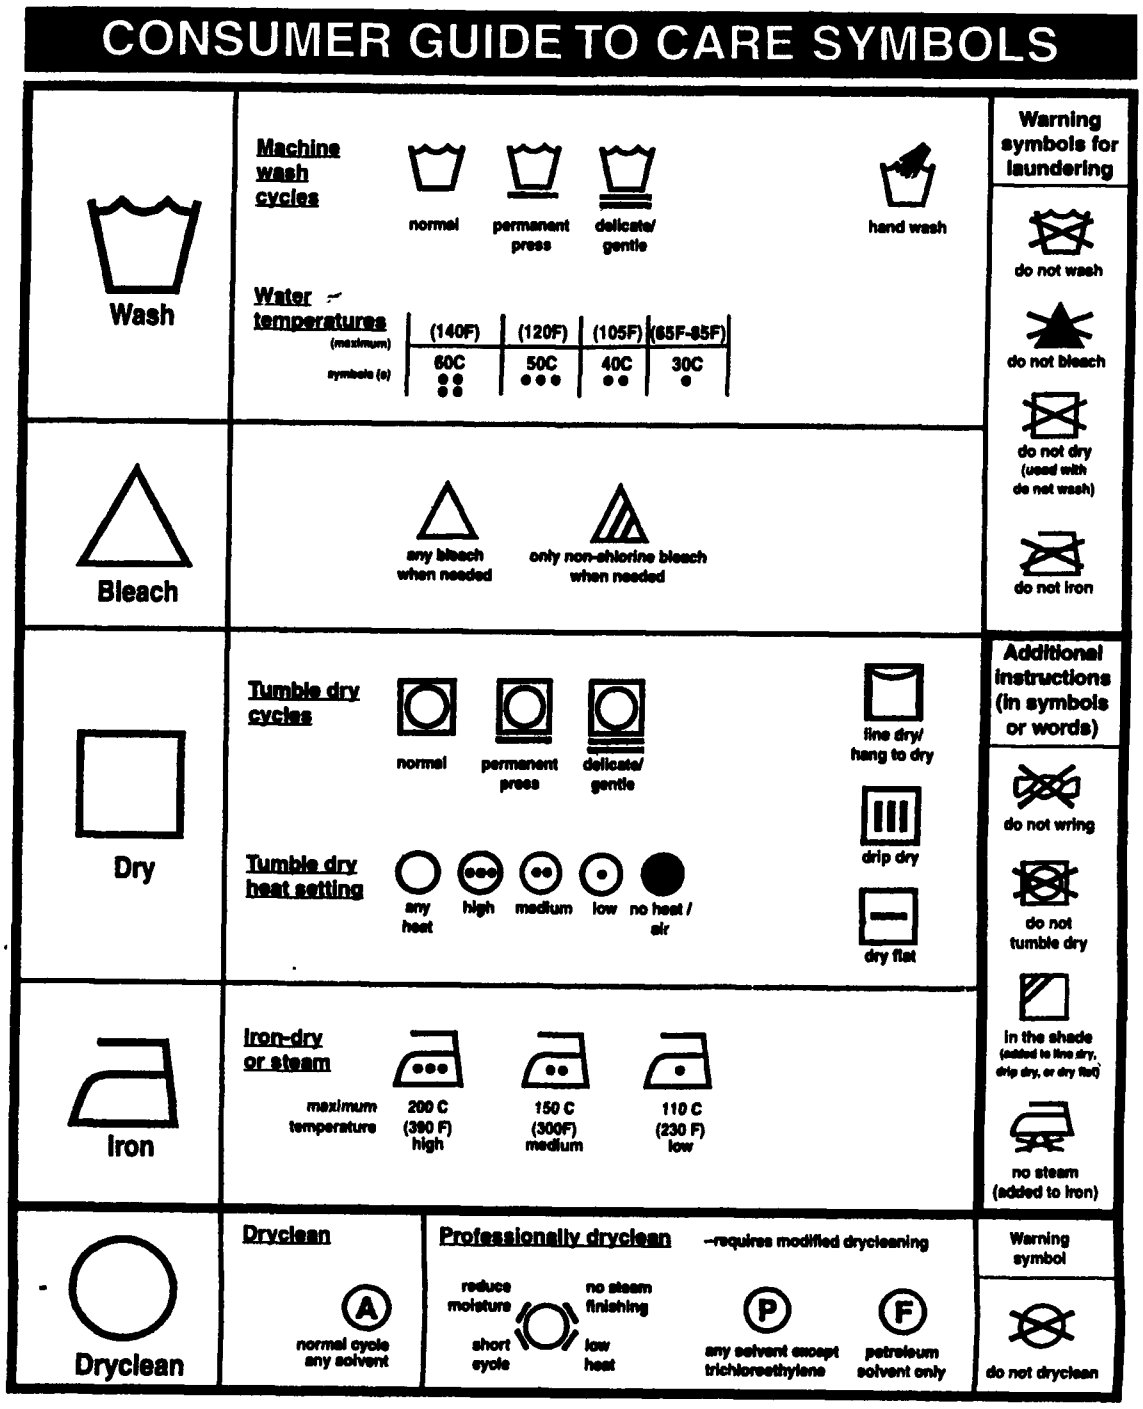
—Washing instructions come in a shape similar to a wash tub, complete with waves on top. A tub with one line underneath indicates the permanent press cycle should be used. A tub with two lines underneath indicates the delicate/gentle cycle. A tub with a hand reaching into it means hand-washing is recommended.

Dots inside the wash tub indicate temperature: one dot for 65 F to 85 F; two dots for 105 F; three dots for 120 F; and four dots for 140 F. These temperatures are comparable to today's "cold," "cool," "warm" and "hot."

—A triangle symbol is used for bleaching instructions. An open triangle means any bleach can be used. A triangle with diagonal lines through it means only non-chlorine bleach can be used. A dark triangle with an X over it indicates no bleach should be used.

—Drying instructions come in a square. A square with a circle inside means the garment can be tumble dried. As with the washer symbol, a line or two underneath the square indicates a permanent press or gentle cycle is recommended, and dots within the circle indicate temperature to be used. A square with a curved line along the top indicates line drying is recommended. "Drip dry" is indicated with three vertical lines inside a square, and "dry flat" is indicated with one horizontal line across a square.

—Ironing instructions are indicated with a symbol that looks a lot like an iron. Dots again indicate temperature, and an X superimposed over the symbol indicates the garment should not be ironed. An iron symbol with two diagonal lines underneath it and an X through the lines means the garment can be ironed on the "no steam" setting.



Note: This Figure illustrates the symbols used for laundering and drycleaning instructions. As a minimum, laundering instructions include, in order, four symbols: washing, bleaching, drying, and ironing; and, drycleaning instructions include one symbol. Additional symbols or words may be used to clarify the instruction.

ASTM Designation: D 5489 PCN: 12-454890-18

—A circle indicates the garment should be dry cleaned. Letters within the circle indicate to professional dry cleaners what solutions should be used. An "A" means any solvent can be used; "P" indicates any solvent but trichloroethylene can be used; and "F" means petroleum solvents must be used.

Consumers can benefit from the symbols in a number of ways, Smith said.

"The symbols can fit on fewer or smaller garment labels," she said. "International travelers also will be able to understand the care requirements of textile itrems purchased while visiting other countries."

This fall "That Milk Thing" will teach Pennsylvania elementary school children to "Eat Smart To Be Smart," thanks to a matching grant from the PA Department of Agriculture.

MAMMA Receives Grants To Promote Milk

TOWSON, Md. — Due to the overwhelming success of past school breakfast promotions, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture recently awarded the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA) with a $12,000 grant to encourage about 16,000 students in 31 Pennsylvania elementary schools to drink milk at school breakfast. MAMMA is one of 19 non-profit organizations that have received grants through the PA Agricultural Product Promotion Matching Grant Program, established to increase consumer awareness and utilization of Pennsylvania agricultural products.

These combined funds will be used to present MAMMA's "Eat Smart To Be Smart" assembly and "I Love Milk At Breakfast" contest to all elementary schools within the Allentown, Lancaster City, and York City school districts. The contests and assemblies are scheduled for the fall semester of the 1997-98 school year. MAMMA's furry, blue, 28-sneakered mascot, "That Milk Thing," will visit each school with the 30-minute in-school assembly program. "That Milk Thing" will tout messages about school breakfast, the five food groups, and the benefits of milk.

In conjunction with the in-school assembly, all schools will participate in the week-long, district-wide "I Love Milk At Breakfast" contest, designed to increase student awareness of the school breakfast program. All students will receive folders sporting the message — "I Gotta A Thing For Milk At Breakfast." Other prizes include tickets to Hershey Bears Ice Hockey games, passes to the Crayola Factory in Allentown, and gift certificates to Pizza Hut restaurant, along with "That Milk Thing" T-shirts, growth posters, and pencils. In order to involve the school milk suppliers, MAMMA has enlisted Kemps, Rutters, and Lehigh Valley Dairies to deliver all contest materials to the schools.

As a prelude to the fall promotions sponsored by the PA Department of Agriculture and MAMMA, 90 school food service employees in all three districts will participate in MAMMA's Milk School Seminar. This hour-long, state-accredited seminar teaches participants about the proper care and handling of milk, along with the overall nutritional value of milk. Ways to deal with lactose intolerance and myths about flavored milks will also be addressed during the seminar.

In addition to the seminar and promotions, all elementary schools in Allentown, Lancaster, and York will receive MAMMA merchandising items, including "That Milk Thing" menu boards and footprint floor graphics.

Carroll County Posts Sale Results

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Support for the Carroll County 4-H and FFA programs was strong Friday night as this year's livestock projects went through the sale ring at the county fair.

This year marked the 100th anniversary of the fair, held at the ag center in Westminster.

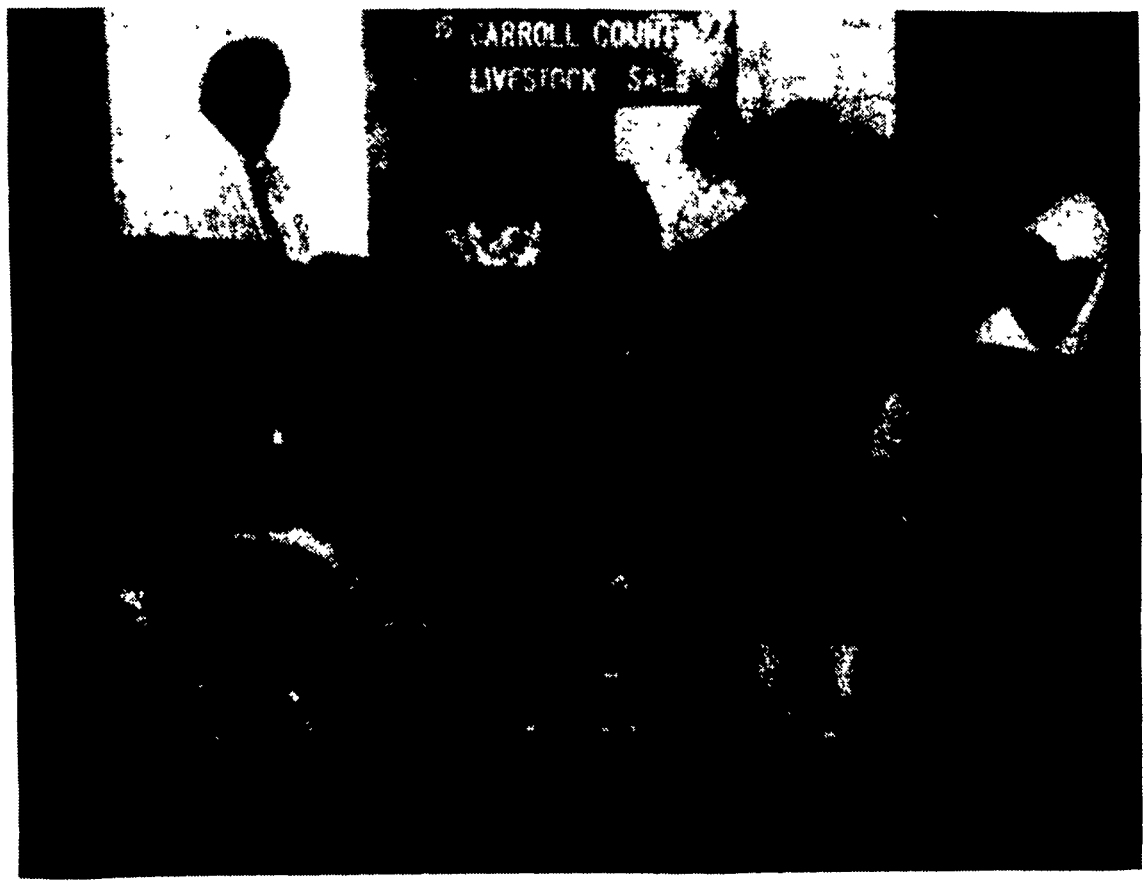
A fundraising drive is under way to finance the construction of new facilities at the ag center, and a number of animals were generously donated back by buyers to help with the building fund.

"I would invite everyone here to look at the plans for the new arena, and with the help and cooperation of everyone, I'm sure we'll be able to go over the top for this campaign," said Andy Cashman, president of the Carroll County fair.

Cashman said later that support for the new facilities had been very good. Of the $2.5 million needed to fund the project, so far approximately $1.7 million had been given. "But it's probably going up after tonight," he said. "We've gotten some great support."

Sixteen-year-old Aubrey Meek of Taneytown sold his grand champion meat pen of rabbits to Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Carroll County for $300. The homebred Californian littermates, two bucks and a doe, were then donated back as a fundraiser for the ag center building fund and purchased by the Carroll County 4-H rabbit club for $130.

Aubrey, the son of Aubrey and Lisa Meek, had the reserve grand champion pen at the Carroll County show last year.



Jen Wildesen, champion beef showman, sold her 1,240-pound champion Shorthorn steer to Carroll Primary Care for $2.25 per pound. From the left, Andy Cashman, Carroll County fair president, the Forst family representing Carroll Primary Care: Colleen, Kathleen, Caitlin, Paul holding Sarah; Jen Wildesen at the halter; and Jessica Fritz, Carroll County farm queen.

The reserve grand champion meat pen owned by James Thompson brought $200 from Plumbing, Heating, and Supplies, Inc. of Westminster.

Jonathan Gibson sold his grand champion capons to Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Carroll County for $335 each. The 11-pound, 12-ounce capons were then donated back and purchased by To Each His Own Antiques, with the funds going to the ag center building fund.

Jonathan, the son of Bill and Nini Gibson of Westminster, has shown the grand champion capon for six out of the last eight years. He attributes his success with capons to a regimen that includes feeding them protein rich food, keeping the cages clean, and giving the birds daily exercise.

"I let them out during the day to exercise. It keeps them going. If you keep them in during the day their legs don't grow with the rest of them," said the Deer Park and Black Rock 4-H club member.

Amy Ridinger sold the only other pair of capons for $50 each to Lizzie's Lockers of Hampstead.

Sixty-eight market lambs went through the sale ring for an average of $2.91. Jen Wildesen sold her 115-pound grand champion Suffolk cross wether to Peggy Bailey for $12 per pound.

This was Jen's final year as a 4-H'er, and she went out with a bang, having not only the grand champion market lamb but also the grand champion market hog, the reserve grand champion steer, and being named champion beef showman of the fair. "A lot of hard work, paying attention to small details, and learning from older 4-H'ers are the keys to her winning projects, according to the Union Bridge teen-ager.

Ali Jones had the reserve grand champion market lamb. Weighing 100 pounds, the lamb brought $7 per pound from Giant Food of Maryland, Inc.

In market goats, Brandy Feeser of Taneytown sold her 75-pound grand champion Nubian Borwe La Mancha crossbred doe to Save-A-Patriot for $575.

This was Brandy's first year with a goat project. In the past she has had lambs. Speaking of her goat, "Ariel," 10-year-old Brandy said, "My Mommy said don't worry about winning because we wanted to breed her, but I guess it's too late now." Brandy is the daughter of David and Barbara Feeser.

Jason Ridinger sold his reserve grand champion market goat, an Alpine Sonnen cross, for $125 to PTL Acres, Woodbine.

Steers averaged $1.19 for 49 head.

Matt Fogle's grand champion steer, a 1,185-pound crossbred out of a Black Angus-Simmental dam crossed with the Main-Anjou sire "Full Throttle," brought $4.75 per pound. Purchasers were C.J. Miller, Inc. of Hampstead, Mason Contractors, Inc. of Manchester, and Martin Hill Landscaping of Manchester. The steer was donated back by the buyers with the funds going toward the building fund. He was then purchased by Tevis Oil Modern Comfort for 95 cents per pound.

Matt Fogle, who showed this year as a 12-year-old, is the son of Dale and Kim Fogle of New Windsor. He said his steer "Bud" has been gaining 2.64 pounds a day. "I'd like to have him a little bit higher, but that's a good goal," said the Woodbine Winners 4-H club member of his first steer project.

The reserve grand champion steeer did not sell. Owned by Jen Wildesen and weighing 1,125 pounds, the crossbred sired by the Chianina bull "Foreplay" crossed with an Angus cow was the steer she won the champion beef showman award with. Jen plans to take the steer, "Baxter," on to the state fair later this summer.

Market swine averaged $1.92 per pound on 72 hogs.

Jen Wildesen sold her 230-pound grand champion Hampshire cross gilt to Leroy Schaefer of Baltimore County for $6 per pound.

Also reselling hogs to benefit Zeiler were Community Bank and Trust, Deerpark Lumber, Keatings' Heaven's Gate Farm, Shipsky and Randt Trucking, and Mike's Heavy Equipment.

The first animal offered for auction was the 263-pound grand champion market hog raised by William Keyes of the Pleasant Mount Go-Getters. This animal was purchased by the Wayne Bank for $7/pound. The reserve grand champion market hog was raised by Bridget O'Neill, also of the Pleasant Mount Go-Getters. Dr. Henry Nebzydoski purchased this animal for $4/pound.

Ellen Salak, Waymart, sold her grand champion market lamb to Paul Mott, Logging, for $9/pound. The reserve grand champion lamb was raised by Ryan Keyes, and purchased by Top Notch Distributors for $6.50/pound.

Kyle Miller's homebred grand champion market steer was a black Angus that was bought by the Wayne Bank for $1.60/pound. His sister Kendall's reserve grand champion market steer was purchased by the Family School for $1.10/pound. Both 4-H members belong to the Pleasant Mount Go-Getters 4-H Club.

A number of individuals and businesses were recognized at the sale for their contributions to the ag center building fund.

C.J. "Buck" Miller Jr. of C.J. Miller, Inc. of Hampstead donated $100,000 for site preparation. The new dining hall will be named in memory of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C.J. and Claire J. Miller.

Robert M. and Ruth Bare, owners of Bare Truck Center, Inc. donated $60,000. "We've always felt we derived our support from the county and we would like to give support back to the county, especially for a program that supports the youth," said Lewis M. Stoms Jr., vice president of the truck center.

Dwayne Amoss of Lehigh Portland Cement in Union Bridge donated $500 toward the new building fund. Lehigh Portland Cement has been a big supporter in the community, and wants to continue with its commitment to support youth and agriculture in the county, said Amoss.

Drought Brings Health Danger For Cattle

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Many dairy and beef cattle producers in the Mid-Atlantic region face a double whammy this year.

Not only is there a growing shortage of forages, but feeding drought-stressed crops could be deadly for their cattle.

So says Lester Vough, forage crops specialist for the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service.

The problem Vough explains, is nitrate poisoning, particularly in severely drought-stunted corn. Some animals already have died from this malady in central Maryland, he reports, and producers should be aware of the potential danger.

Excessively high levels of nitrogen are likely to occur in corn and other forages that have been growing under stress conditions, such as when corn has been fertilized for high grain yield and becomes stunted by drought.

Vough notes that some soil moisture is necessary for plants to absorb and accumulate nitrates. On the other hand, the resumption of normal plant growth after a heavy rainfall will reduce nitrate accumulation. So harvesting a crop for forage should be delayed three to five days after the rainfall.

How can farmers cope with nitrate toxicity? Vough suggests these management practices:

- Cut the forage for silage. The fermentation process will reduce nitrate levels. Delay feeding the silage for about four weeks to make sure the fermentation process is complete.
- When chopping corn for silage, include only the top two-thirds of the plant. The bottom third always has the highest nitrate accumulation.
- Before feeding forage, have it chemically analyzed for nitrate content.
- On this last point, the Maryland Department of Agriculture now offers free nitrate testing to farmers in drought-stricken counties of the state. Samples should be taken to county offices of the cooperative extension service throughout Maryland. They will be forwarded to the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) state chemist in Annapolis for testing. Farmers should contact their local extension office for details on submitting the samples.

County extension offices in Maryland also have fact sheets available free of charge that pertain to nitrate poisoning of livestock, as well as procedures for feeding drought-stressed corn.

OPEN COWS WANTED

If you have one or more good dairy cows that you can't get pregnant; call me. I can use about 100 cows. I will feed an all natural mix; breed them and give you first chance to buy the cow back pregnant. Every cow will be bred to a $100.00 A.I. bull; and seven to eight months pregnant when I sell her at the fair market value. You save money on hauling and shrinkage and I will pay you a little extra for the better cows.

The last time I ran an add for Open Cows Wanted; I got a lot of calls from Dairymen wanting to know what I am doing; then they wouldn't sell me the cow after I told them; so I will just tell you now. I use Formula M on your cow; breed to a $100.00 bull and sell her back to you seven or eight months pregnant. The success ratio is near 100%; but if you know the cow to be cystic; please tell me when you call; because the procedure is different for cystic cows. I will take cystic cows; but it will be helpful if I know they are cystic when I buy them.

I am only interested in the better cows with GP, VG or EXC. Mammary.

P.S. If you just want to know what I use; call 1-800-327-0727 and save me the time and expense of returning the call.

Farmer Receives Service Award

NEWARK, Del. — George J. Collins of Laurel, Del., has received the 1997 outstanding Service to Agriculture Award for Sussex County.

The award was presented Aug. 12 at the Sussex County Service Clubs' annual picnic at the University of Delaware Research and Education Center in Georgetown.

Born and raised in Laurel, Del., Collins was graduated from Laruel High School in 1949. For 40 years he and his wife, Marlene, worked the Laurel farm and raised two children, a daughter, Karen, and a son, Mark, who joined his father on the family farm in 1980.

Collins started as a soybean and corn grower, but later branched out into watermelon production and a broiler growout operation. He was at the vanguard of the trend toward irrigation in Sussex County, eventually installing irrigation systems over his entire farm of 1,000 acres.

Always a proponent of conservation practices, Collins used no-till techniques to reduce soil erosion and routine soil testing to determine accurate lime and fertilizer needs. He was among the first farmers on Delmarva to build a dead-bird composter and a manure storage building. In addition, his farm is enrolled in Delaware's tax ditch program.

Collins retired in 1991, leaving the farm operation to his son. That same year, father and son won the 1991 Master Farmer Award presented by Pennsylvania Farmer Magazine and Cooperative Extension Service for high achievement in farming and public service. He has also received the Delaware Farm of Distinction Award.

A Sussex County Councilman from the 5th District serving his second term, Collins is also a member and past president of the Mar-Del Watermelon Growers Association, past director and president of the Southern Delaware Truck Growers Association, and past director of the Laurel Grain Company. He is a member of the Henlopen #20 Grange, the farm bureau, and chair of the Sussex County Agricultural Lands Preservation advisory board.

Collins' service to agriculture through the University of Delaware's College of Agricultural Sciences has been exceptional. He is a member and past president of the Sussex County Extension Advisory Council and has served on the UD's Delaware Agriculture Research and Teaching Committee. A UD Extension cooperator for four decades, Collins has invited extension researchers to conduct demonstration projects on his farm, including testing for spider mite control, pregermination of waltermelon seeds, in-row tilling practices, variety trials, nutrient tests, soil additives, and integrated pest management (IPM) of watermelons.

Dear Friends of the Clinic for Special Children
We are again asking for your support and donations of saleable items to sell at the 6th Annual Benefit Auction on Saturday, Sept 20, 1997, at the Leola Produce Auction site on Brethren Church Rd , Leola, PA
All proceeds will go to the Clinic for Special Children, a non-profit organization, with Dr Holmes Morton as the attending physician Dr Morton has taken a special interest in several hereditary diseases By testing all newborn babies of high-risk percent-age, he has been able to prevent irreversible brain damage of many of these young children The same tests that are done at the clinic for $35^{00}$ would cost $350^{00}$ to $400^{00}$ at major medical centers, making these tests too expensive for many parents The costs of owning and operating this laboratory equipment are huge, but with the funds from this annual auction the clinic has been able to offer this service to their clients at a price that is affordable by the average parent
You may contact any of the following for more information or, if you wish, deliver your donation to any of them Thank you for your support

Consulting Firm To Host Field Day

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — On Thursday, Sept. 4, Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service, Inc. (BACS) will host the the second of this season's several free public field days from 10 a.m. - 3 p.m. at its research farm located on the historic Hibshman Homestead, three miles north of Ephrata. The Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Samuel E. Hayes Jr. will address the attendees at noon.

There are more than 40 different research projects, under way at the farm. Guided wagon tours of the various research projects will be given with field demonstrations available.

Some of the ongoing research includes pesticide trials, equipment use, fertilizer comparisons and planting studies. In addition to field corn, soybean variety trials, and numerous pestricide trials, research is also being conducted on high oil corn, roundup Ready corn, sweet corn varieties, leafhopper-resistant alfalfa, and processing pea and wheat variety trials.

Monsanto Names Conservation Tillage Specialist

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Lance J. Tarochione has been named one of Monsanto Company's six regional conservation tillage specialists. He will focus on conservation issues in the eastern Corn Belt, including Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio, and Pennsylvania.

Tarochione has served as a research biologist and field biologist for Monsanto in the Midwest. He has extensive production and research experience in no-till and other conservation tillage techniques.

Tarochione will serve as a full-time ambassador for conservation tillage, actively working with organizations that already promote conservation tillage, including state agencies and local conservation districts. He also will spotlight cooperative efforts of such groups, and of individuals from all areas of agriculture at Centers of Excellence conservation tillage test farms, sponsored in part by Monsanto. He will work with growers; academics; conservationists; seed, equipment and fertilizer suppliers; and others to research and refine conservation tillage practices and overcome barriers to adoption.

"Monsanto feels strongly that conservation tillage has far-reaching benefits and should be supported as a best management practice," said Eunice Guier, Monsanto's marketing manager of conservation tillage. "Conservation tillage restores and preserves wildlife habitats; it protects the quality of our water, air and soil; and prevents soil erosion. But it does not today enjoy the same recognition as other designated BMPs."

Tarochione and his father have been no-tilling corn since 1983 and soybeans since 1987 on their west-central Illinois farm. He received degrees in agronomy from the University of Illinois at Urbana, where he researched fertility issues in no-till corn. Tarochione is a certified crop adviser in Illinois.

Gehl Introduces Mower Conditioners

WEST BEND, Wis. — Gehl Company has introduced two new Gehl-designed and built disc mower conditioners — Models DC2345 with a 9-foot 2-inch cut and the DC2365 with a 10-foot 3-inch cut.

These disc mower conditioners feature a simple drive system with fewer moving parts to power both the cutterbar and conditioning rolls from a single gearcase.

Both Models share common features including gear-driven cutterbars that are protected from rocks and other field obstructions by full-width skid shoes that cover the entire underside of the cutterbar. The patented Protectadrive™ system protects the cutterbar gear train from damage in the event of disc contact with major field obstacles. Each disc drive assembly is easily and individually removable for quick servicing.

Gehl Company has introduced two new Gehl-designed and built disc mower conditioners — Models DC2345 with a 9-foot 2-inch cut and the DC2365 with a 10-foot 3-inch cut.

Wide, intermeshing machined conditioning rolls deliver more consistent conditioning. Gehl's forming chamber delivers fast-drying, higher-standing, fluffier windrows or full-width swaths.

New Loader For Compact Tractors

DES MOINES, Iowa — Pioneer® brand hybrids represented by the company's new five-character numbering system will be widely seen by growers across the country this summer.

Widespread appearance of the numbers is the result of the largest new hybrid introduction in the history of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

"The five-character numbering system became effective one year ago, replacing the four-digit numbering system used by Pioneer in the United States and Canada since 1961," said Bruce Hall, director of identification systems. "The company is introducing new genetics to the market at such a rapid pace, it has virtually exhausted all possible four-digit number combinations."

Hall adds that the new numbering system may seem confusing at first because the third or center "number" is a letter of the alphabet.

"The new numbering system is very similar to the previous four-digit system," Hall said. "In corn for example, the first numeral, 3, represents the corn product line. The second numeral reflects the maturity or area of adaption, as did the old four-digit system. The remaining three characters are randomly assigned and have no specific meaning."

While some in the seed industry have chosen to make special designations using alphabet characters, Pioneer does not use this third character to designate any corn hybrid or soybean variety characteristic, technology trait or value-added feature. However, the third character will designate specific characteristics in the alfalfa, wheat, sunflower, canola and sorghum product lines. Product packaging will prominently carry symbols indicating special traits and any special care and attention that growers should follow.

The new numbering system is totally unique and will set Pioneer apart from others in the seed industry. The new system will be adopted by Pioneer worldwide, replacing the fantasy naming system long used in other countries. Phase-in for Europe and Australia will be completed in 1999.

Because of government regulations, all Pioneer products numbered prior to June 30, 1996, will retain their original designation until retired. The Federal Seed Act does not allow see companies to reuse numbers for the same type of seed that have already been used in the marketplace.

Glencoe Brings Disc Harrows To The Field

ATLANTA, Ga. — Agco Glencoe introduces a full line of field proven disc harrows. The new line includes two rigid frame finishing discs (TD350/TD351), two flex frame finishing discs (TD580/TD590), and one offset primary tillage disc (OD650).

The new Glencoe line is designed to match any size operation with a wide range of wide and narrow frame tandem discs. The non-folding discs have a cutting width of 8 feet to 18 feet while the folding models have a cutting width of 13 feet to 32 feet.

For great cutting action, the four finishing discs offer a choice of 20 inches or 22 inches cut-out or smooth disc blades. The TD350/351 offers a 7½ -inch or 9-inch disc spacing while the TD580/590 offers an 8-inch or 9-inch disc spacing. The OD650 offset disc features 24 inches or 26 inches cut out or round disc blades with a choice of 9-inch or 10½ -inch disc spacing. The average weight exceeds 100 pounds per blade (170 lbs./blade on the OD650's). Scrapers are standard on all models. The end blades on all models are tapered by 2 inches to leave a smooth, level finish.

Preparing for planting is easier than ever with five new disc harrows from Agco Glencoe. The TD 580 wing fold model, shown, is one of a full line of disc harrows available in 8-foot to 32-foot widths.

Built to provide years of dependable service, the Glencoe discs come equipped with triple lip seal ball bearings with an option of rigid or flexible bearing hangers. For added durability, end bearings are never more than one blade from the end of the gang. For more aggressive tilling action, the TD350/351 and OD650 feature an adjustable gang angle that ranges from 15 degrees to 26 degrees. The TD580/590 has a non-adjustbale gang angle of 18 degrees.

Several specifications are standard throughout the line. All models feature high flotation wheels, spring rod leveling systems, and heavy-duty welded tubular frames. The hydraulic cylinders and hoses are standard on all folding models.

Deere Launches Track-Tractor Production

WATERLOO, Iowa — John Deere officially launched production of its 8000T Series Track Tractors at its Waterloo Works.

With the launch, Deere provides farmers with a choice of tire or track machines in the 160- to 225-horsepower power range.

John Deere announced its intentions to produce and market the series of four track tractors — the 160-hp 8100T, 180-hp 8200T, 200-hp 8300T, and 225-hp 8400T — last fall. The company displayed prototype tractors at major farm shows throughout the fall and winter to create interest and familiarize farmers with the machines.

This spring, a North American demonstration fleet was deployed to show farmers how the tractors performed in the field. With production under way, the company is beginning to fill retail orders for the new machines.

A John Deere 8400T tractor nears completion at the John Deere Waterloo Works in Waterloo, Iowa. The company officially launched production of the 8000T Series Tractors on June 19.

Based on the company's 8000 Series Tractors introduced in September 1994, they share the same exclusive features. These features include the CommandARM™ armrest module that puts the primary tractor controls at the operator's fingertips, electronic engine control that produces up to a 10 percent power bulge, spacious CommandView™ cab, easy-to-use TouchSet™ hydraulics, and John Deere Field Cruise™ control that maintains consistent operating speed for seeding, cultivating, and spraying.

Tread spacing can be adjusted from 60 inches to 88 inches without the expense of spacers and the need to remove the track frames from the tractors. A closely coupled 3-pount hitch, designed for track applications, combined with the tractors' weight distribution and ballasting packages, provide greater stability than other track machines. The 8000T Series Tractors come standard with 15,560 pounds of lift capacity.

Coal Byproducts Promising As Lining In Livestock Waste Lagoons

LONDON, Ohio — A byproduct from coal-burning power plants may soon replace clay as a liner for livestock waste lagoons, said Tarunjit S. Butalia, research associate at Ohio State University's department of civil and environmental engineering and geodetic science.

Laboratory tests have shown the coal byproduct — called flue gas desulfurization or FGD — resists the flow of water. Researchers finishing up the first year of a three-year project are optimistic that FGD could be used in place of clay to line livestock waste lagoons.

"There are spots in Ohio where good clay is not abundant to use as a liner, and it can be expensive to buy and transport clay to these areas," Butalia said. "FGD could be used instead."

The expectation is that FGD will be made available to farmers for free at source plants.

Butalia and Ohio State civil engineering professor William E. Wolfe will discuss the use of FGD as an impervious liner for swine and other livestock waste lagoons at the Farm Science Review on Thursday, Sept. 18, at 11:30 a.m. in the Bailey Building.

A full-scale demonstration lagoon being built at Ohio State's Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center's Western Branch in South Charleston will test the effectiveness of a field-compacted FGD liner, Butalia said. Water will be added to the lagoon during the first year, and the permeability of the FGS liner will be measured.

Livestock waste will be added and monitored in the second year. Then, the lagoon will serve as a storage facility for livestock waste at the branch, Butalia said.

"The lagoon will be completed by the start of the Review, so if there is enough interest from people during our presentation, we will arrange a tour," he said.

The OARDC Western Branch is only about 20 miles from the Farm Science Review.

"Hopefully, if everything goes well, the Environmental Protection Agency will approve FGD as a lagoon liner soon," Butalia said. "FGD has already been approved by the Ohio EPA for use in constructing cattle feedlots and hay storage pads.

Large scrubbers at some Ohio plants can produce about 22 tons of the byproduct per hour. Annually, 3 to 4 million tons of the material are created statewide.

The byproduct has generally been landfilled. But increasing landfill costs and limited landfill space prompted utility companies and Ohio State researchers to begin searching for ways to effectively reuse the material, Butalia said. FGD also is being considered as a liner for recreational ponds, constructed wetlands, and landfills.

FGD research at Ohio State is being done in collaboration with Hocking Technical College in Nelsonville. The project is sponsored by the Ohio Coal Development Office, American Electric Power, Dravo Lime Company, Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, Ohio Pork Producers Council, Ohio Cattlemen's Association, Ohio Poultry Association and several other agricultural and industrial organizations.

For more information about the use of FGD as impervious liners, interested people can view its website (http:www-ltap.eng.ohio-state.edu/liner/).

The Farm Science Review is sponsored by Ohio State's College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences and takes place at the Molly Caren Agricultural Center near London, Ohio. Tickets are $4 in advance and $6 at the gate and can be purchased from agribusinesses and county offices of OSU Extension. Children 12 and younger get free admission. Hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sept. 16-17 and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sept. 18.
